Construction was apparent on almost all parts of the campus at Fayetteville during the year as men and machines built Roberta Fulbright dormitory for women, Brough Commons for men, and Carlson Terraces as married student's apartments. The Razorback football team got new practice facilities next to the stadium and the new Catholic student center opened this spring.

HANDSHAKING session is about to begin as rushees embark on the Sigma Chi's for one of the six non-preferential rush parties held during rush week. Sore hands, forced smiles, and all night "bull sessions" typified the week at U of A.

sore hands, dainty napkins, talk

ALPHA DELTA PI'S, participating in their second fall rush since their founding on campus, entertained rushees at one of the afternoon parties.

The Greeks came back to school first to clean up, paint up, and fix up their houses for fall rush. Practice parties were staged and neophytes were given propaganda pushing programs by veterans. The rushees decended on the Greeks in one big hand shake and a hug. Nerves were unsteadied, lungs strained, voices were lost, and the parties progressed. The inevitable preferential time rolled around and the die was cast. Finally, bids were extended to one hundred and eighty two women and two hundred and eight men on Saturday. After farcical rush parties, Greeks showed new pledges how partying is really done. Everyone who was coming returned for registration and it was met with the traditional comment, "Is this really necessary?"

LAST MINUTE appeal to rushee to return and take another look at the house and boys is made by PiKA President Joe Ford as fraternities competed for the first time under new IFC rule which limited number of bids to 30 instead of the usual 40.

ABIDING by Panhellenic rush rules, only the Pi Beta Phi President, Karo Kampbell, and rush captain, Jan Graham, are outside house to greet rushees. Panhellenic requires that all sorority members except the president and rush chairman stay inside when rushees arrive and leave.

INFORMAL atmosphere prevailed at Lambda Chi Alpha house as coats came off and ties were loosened as the party progressed. Mac McDonald and a group of Lambda Chi's tell rushees advantages and assets of pledging their fraternity, attempt to answer the rushees questions.

FUNNY rush skit was presented by emcee Carolyn Harris and her Monroe-type contestant, Norma White, in hopes that the rushees would get the message and "Go ChiO".

SIGNS to distinguish their cars in the jam outside the Union were prepared by Sigma Nu. President Lynn Campbell gives go ahead word to his drivers as the afternoon rushees have been released.

KAPPA KLOWNS Cindy Dew, Diane CaHail, and Virginia Ingram perform for rushees in order to ease tension and break monotony of the two hour parties. Skits usually lasted 30 minutes with the remainder of the time spent sipping cokes, and balancing cookies on a napkin, and discussing sororities.

SAE PLEDGE Dickie Cooley receives his pin outside the Union from new fraternity brother Jim Foster. Pride, excitement, and victorious shouts reigned after the new fraternity men burst through the door.

RUSH CHAIRMAN Bob Dudley makes one of his celebrated rush week appearances at one of the convocations which were held before each party. The effects of the week can easily be estimated by the angle rushees head droops.

new pledges and a happy ending

LONE GIRL is visible in front of the Union on Saturday when fraternities extend bids. Greeks bring their signs and banners and station themselves in front of the door to wait for their new pledges who pour out into waiting arms when it is all over.

JAN BRINKER is congratulated by one of his new Kappa Sigma brothers, Mike Thompson, after he received his bid slip inside. A quick tour of the sorority houses, luggage pick up, and room assignment await Jan before he and his new brothers have their pledging party.

JUBILANT Pi Phi's greet their new sisters with hugs, embraces, songs, cheers, claps and welcome words. Excited pledges ran all the way from Holcombe and literally fell into the arms of the crowd waiting on the corner.

CONFUSION prevailed after tedious ordeal with advisors and train tickets as students jam the class card table in an effort to get in a section before it closed. But, many students found that sections the advisor had suggested, dean approved, were closed.

NECK WEARY members of Razorback staff, Bob Dawson and Etta Sue Ward, harangue students for a suitable time to make their annual pictures.

Without the slightest hesitation, the profs got the ball rolling and opened up with assignments on the new and the old alike. The Baylor game kicked off another football season and even if it wasn't successful, students still migrated to Little Rock. Porker spirit can be highly commended as the pep rallies got bigger and better, especially when Dickey Trammel's Arkansas Booster Club marched everyone to Wilson Sharp in the rain. President Caldwell addressed a packed house at the fourth annual University convocation and stressed the need for more money to meet rising educational costs. Delta Delta Delta walked, sawed, kicked, and hopped their way to victory in the fifth annual Sigma Nu Relays. Chi Omega and Pi Beta Phi fought it out in traditional fashion for second and third respectively.

DISGUSTED expression of Alan Sugg over the cost of a book at the University Bookstore reflected attitude of most students as alleged "non profit" policy seemed doubtful at times.

DISCUSSING possibility of letting more students sign for speech section that had previously been reported closed, Dr. Blair Hart attempts to get Tommy Murchison in desired section. Late registrants found difficulty in gaining admission into any sections except those which met late in afternoon or on Saturday.

ATTENDING college classes was old stuff to these law students who were attending the University for the seventh year; but to the bewildered freshman it was an unnerving experience. Many wandered about the campus trying to find someone to interpret their schedule and tell them where UH 308 was located.

fever for football, start of class

RED-WHITE game gave students and Frank Broyles a preview of the '58 Razorbacks. Coach Merrill Green of the Red team gives instructions to Kyser, Stone and Alberty.

ENTHUSIASTIC students pack the Greek Theatre for the first pep rally of the year in preparation for the Baylor game in Little Rock. Coach Frank Broyles was introduced at the rally and won immediate favor and approval of the student body.

STANDING for the University alma mater, a capacity crowd heard President John Tyler Caldwell speak on the need for greatly enlarged facilities, faculty, and budget to handle the increasing number of students expected in the next few years.

STRAINING for victory and escape from the mud pit, Pi Beta Phi's successfully defended their tug-of-war championship. Lead tuggers Hansi Lecklitner and Elsie Shipp give it the old heave as captain Joan Graham gives the command to pull.

BALANCING dangerously on stilts, contestants hoist up for the first heat of the stilt race. The giant steps of Tri-Delts Phyllis Smithwick and Marilane Sulcer helped them walk away with the event.

tri-delts win sigma nu relays

BOUNCING into the lead in the sack race is Tri-Delt Margaret Whistle. Fighting for second spot is ChiO Harryette Oswald and ADPi Pat Gies. Margaret's teammate waiting at the end of the lane hopped just as well and the Tri-Delts emerged victors in the burlap bounce.

HULA HOOP craze created a new event for the relays and Zeta Tau Alpha established the first hoop record. In the first heat, ChiO Connie Noland was able to swing down the lane, but Tri-Delt Sue Rutherford could only get the hoop rotating and was unable to move forward.

STAGGERING down the lane, Zeta Linda Durham sets sights on next tube as Pi Phi Mimi Kerr loops ring overhead in an effort to block her vision. ChiO Alice Rothert found winning combination to stumble across finish line in record time.

DADS take the spotlight during the annual Dad's Day game as fathers of football players were given sideline seats to see Razorbacks perform. Cheers of fathers were in vain as Rice triumphed.

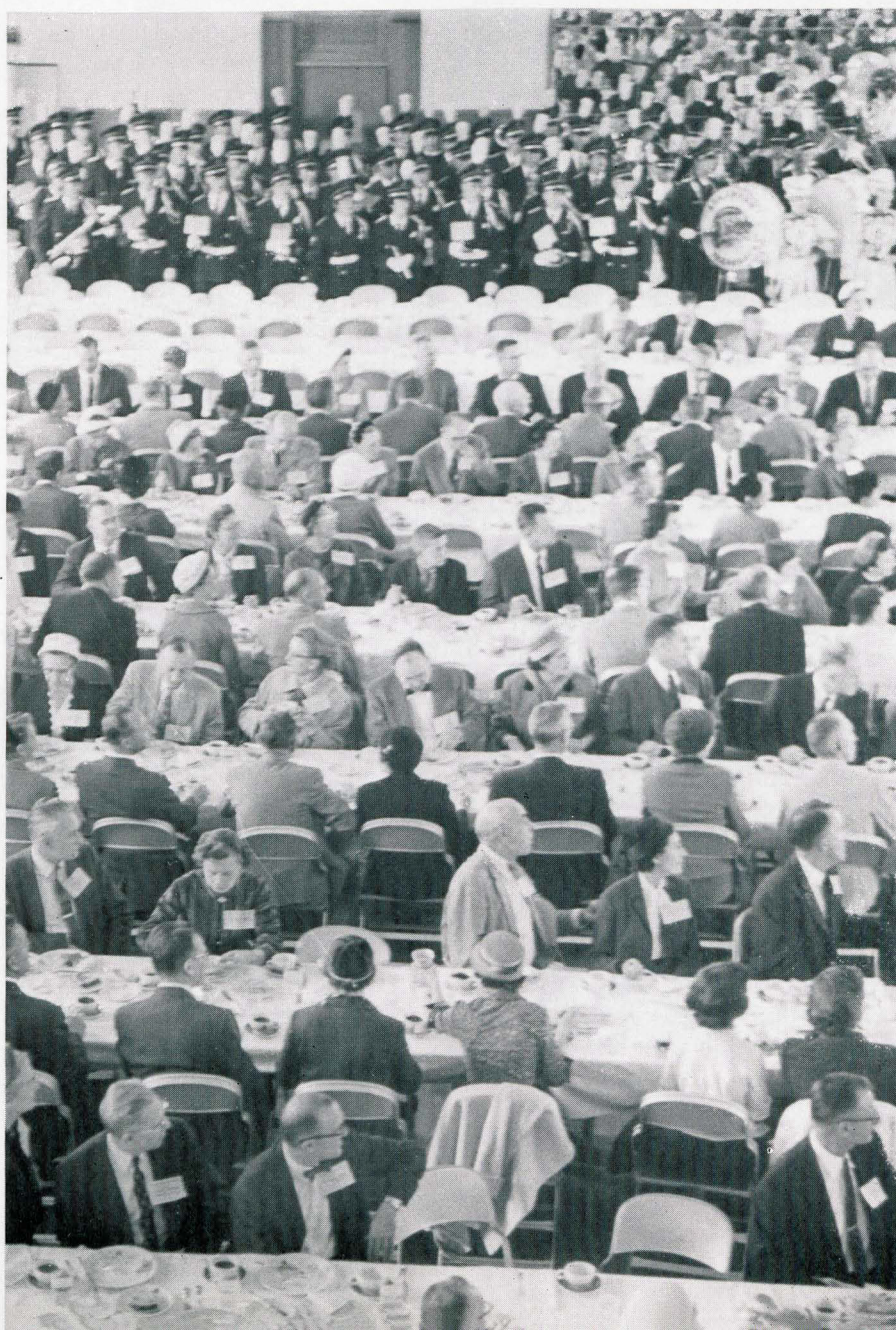

a day for dad's and legislators

FOILED momentarily as arrangements are completed inside, the Marching Razorbacks and Cheerleaders await turn to make noise for legislators.

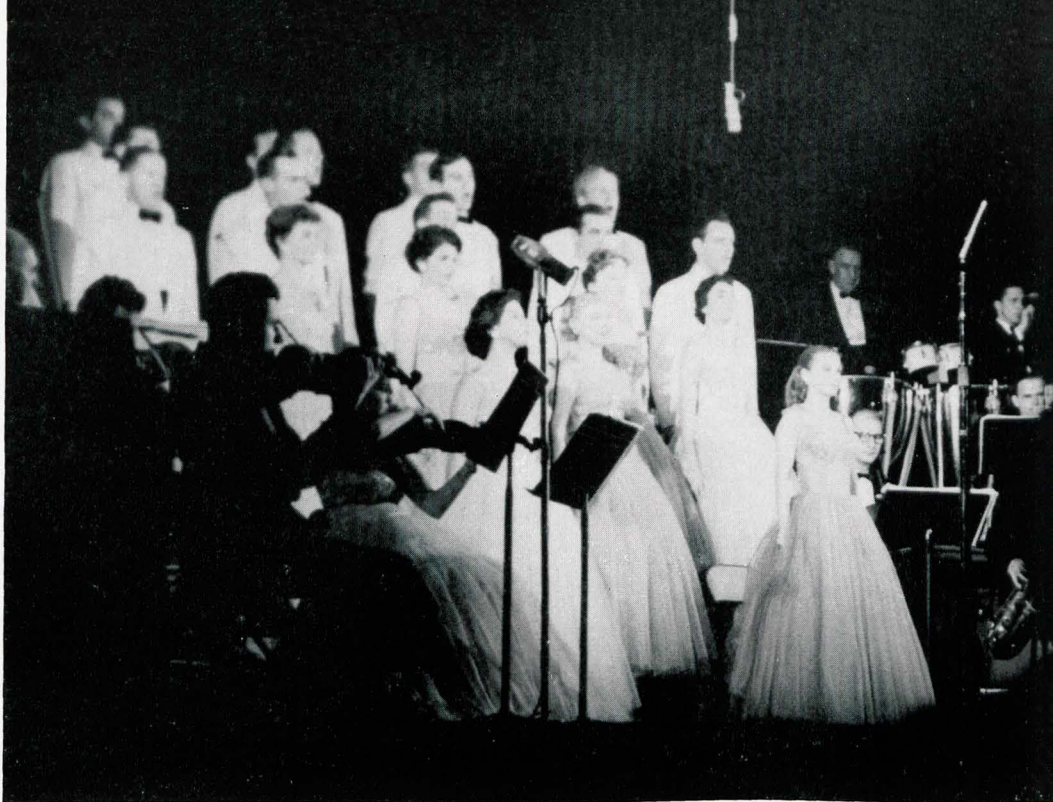

Legislators and the Rice Owls came up for the weekend. The Owls took home a 24-0 win and the legislators went home with more knowledge on certain issues. The student directory, which was the center of much controversy in '57 when it was two months late, arrived in record time for distribution. Blue Key recommended deferred rush to IFC while parachutist Wallace Saunders and his cohorts were jumping from airplanes. IFC retreated to Noel, Mo. for a weekend and unanimously voted down deferred rush. An impromptu pep rally was staged before the Ole Miss game and over 1,000 students marched in the rain to Wilson Sharp. University students signed a petition endorsing the 3% sales tax and it was presented, along with petitions from other schools, to Gov. Faubus at the Ole Miss game.

SIGMA CHI spider web was too far from the stadium to ensnare the wary Rice Owls who ruled the day, 24-0. Organized houses were urged by the Booster Club to decorate yards and houses in honor of the University dads.

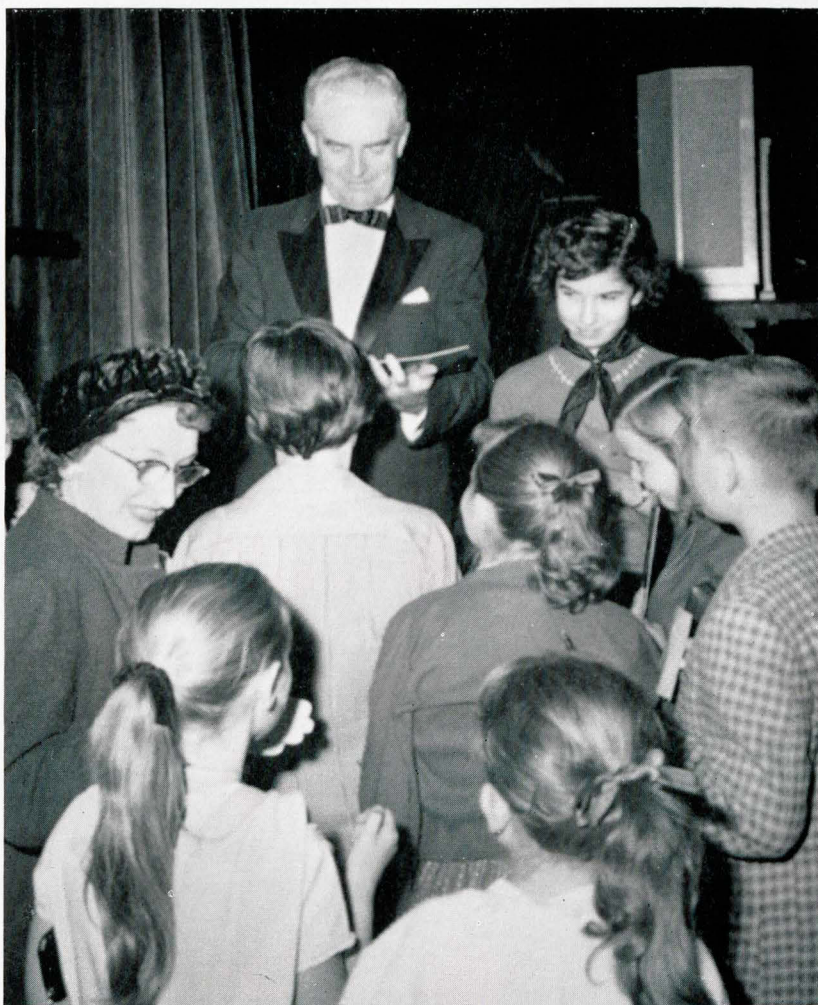

INSIDE the Student Union, legislators and wives drop forks, food and stare in amazement as Razorback drum cadence thunders through the ballroom. Getting into the spirit of the thing, the diners soon rose to lend their renditions of "calling the hogs" at an impromptu pep rally.

INSTRUMENTS are raised and throats cleared in an all-too-human preliminary to heavenly music. Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians charmed the University audience with original arrangements ranging from college fight songs to religious music. Extensive sound equipment added to audience appreciation.

a hi fi holiday from fred waring

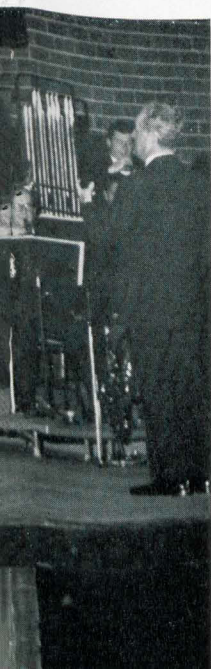

FRED WARING and a member of his entourage accept compliments, sign autographs, and smile broadly at admiring fans following his three-hour concert.

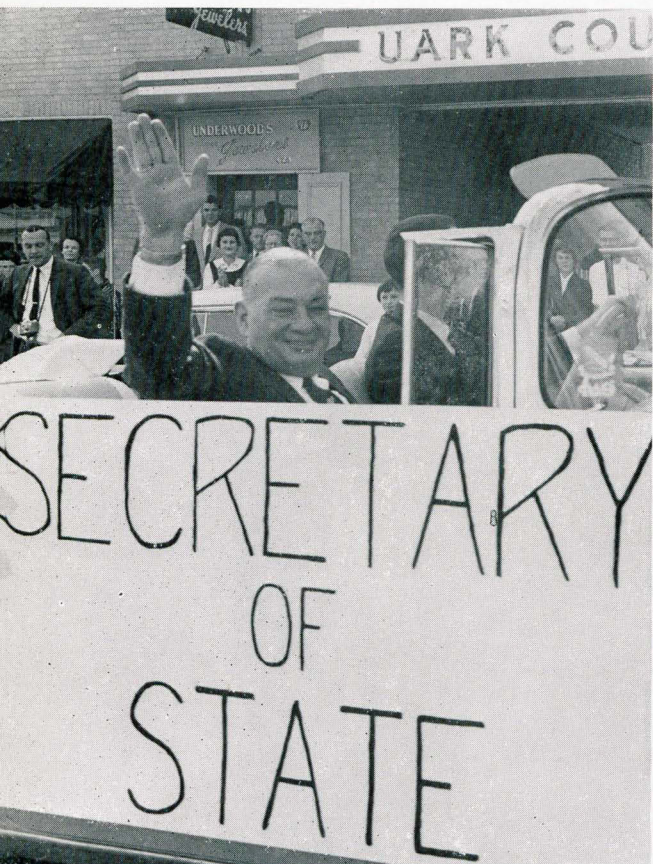

COSTUMES changed to suit the mood of the music, the Pennsylvanians await maestro Waring's downbeat to soar off on another musical excursion. The orchestra and singers, fifty in all, played to a capacity house in the Men's Gym.

GEORGE COLE DAY was proclaimed as the Razorbacks met Hardin-Simmons in Little Rock. Board of Trustee member L. C. Carter read the proclamation and presented the assistant athletic director an automobile in recognition of his service.

DIGNITARIES by the score entered Fayetteville for the Homecoming festivities and many found themselves in convertibles during the parade Saturday morning. Included among them was Secretary of State C. G. "Crip" Hall, one of the founders of U of A Homecoming.

PREDICTION by the Sigma Chi weather vane proved appropriate as the Razorbacks won the Homecoming clash and the Ski's placed first in the house decoration judging for the second consecutive year.

friday rain postpones judging

GIANT WORM manned by Sigma Nu pledges clad in green trousers won third place trophy in the men's division of the parade. Sixty foot worm did several clever, coordinated movements for crowd and judges as they "inched to victory" but slowed down parade.

OFF COUNT BEATS of the Schniglefrütz band amused the crowd with various antics including marching in and out of parade column moving down Dickson Street, but failed to amuse the ROTC drill teams who found difficulty keeping correct march time with the parading Schniglefrützers.

EXPECTATION of a victory by Sigma Alpha Epsilon depicted an overgrown stork delivering a Razorback win in its beak. The float drew comments, praise of children, adults, and judges as it walked off with first place in the float competition.

WINNER in the women's house division was the Chi Omega bananas. Football fans stopped to admire the colorful characters on their way down Maple to Razorback Stadium and gave their approval to the judge's decision.

ELABORATE Kappa Sigma house decoration drew attention, caused controversy on campus after it placed third behind Sigma Chi and Sigma Nu.

Arkansas alums were glad to be Arkansas alums as the Razorbacks humbled Meeks, Meredith, and their Mustangs, 13-6. Governor Faubus crowned Janelle Dixon as Queen before 28,000 football fans. Rain hampered Homecoming events as the house judging was postponed from Friday afternoon to Saturday morning. Sigma Chi and Chi Omega removed the rain covers from their decorations to take first places. Sigma Nu and Holcombe Hall copped second place honors and third place prizes in the two divisions went to Kappa Sigma and Kappa Gamma. SAE, Sigma Chi, and Sigma Nu finished 1,2,3, in the men's float competition. Zeta Tau Alpha and the Kappas tied for first and Chi Omega and Holcombe Hall tied for second in the women's competition.

ZETA'S pinned their hopes on a non-too-benevolent King Porker and the benevolent judges pinned a first place ribbon on their efforts as they tied with Kappa's.

COMPLETION of Kappa float is at last in sight for these sleepy laborers who wish for insomnia or a relief crew. The Kappa's planned early, finished early, and took a first place trophy for a tie with the Zeta's in the women's division of the float competition. The annual Homecoming parade was revived this year after last year's layoff during the flu epidemic.

FRESHMEN were pullin' for a victory and not only pulled in a win over the Mustangs, but also two trophies as Holcombe Hall placed second in the women's house decorations and tied Chi Omega for second place in the float division.

a victory for queen janelle

TRI-DELT float drew the most attention as it carried Queen Janelle Dixon, a Tri-Delt, and her Homecoming Court on their royal rip to the stadium.

FLAMING TORCHES and a crowd estimated at 500 gathered outside President Caldwell's home climaxing the Homecoming weekend with cries of "we want a holiday". Dr. Caldwell explained that it was not the University's policy to dismiss classes for winning football games.

HIGHLIGHT of the day came at halftime when Governor Faubus crowned Homecoming Queen Janelle Dixon. In the background are Maid Alice Kay Moffett and her escort, Eddie McRell. Queen Janelle's day was perfect as the rain and SMU were stopped.

ENTERTAINING while the judges stepped to the wings to make their decision is John Tolleson who led Christmas carols then sang a few of his special numbers. Joining John on the program were Sally Miller, who sang two numbers, and Bob Flowers, who played his version of "The Flight of the Bumble Bee".

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA delighted the crowd with a medley of "The Night Before Christmas" and also delighted the judges as director Emily Sue Damon was called to the stage to accept the first place trophy in the women's division.

a singfony win for kappa, phi delt

CONFERRING with Singfony judges Richard Brothers, Miss Edna Earle Massey, and Dr. Marx Pales about procedure to be followed in announcing winners is chairman Dale Green. After careful note taking, the three judges departed to a private room where, after a long conference, the final decision was made.

HAPPY with their accomplishment, Carnall Hall leader Joy Sanders beams with pride as she accepts the second place trophy from Dale Green. The girl's song didn't stop the show, but their shouts and screams of victory did.

METICULOUS PLANNING right up to the time they went on the stage accounted in part for Phi Delta Theta's win in Singfony. Extensive practice, musical knowledge and ability, and the direction of Bill Taylor rounded out the reasons for their beautiful music.

PAUSING between numbers, Roger Williams peers into platter containing requests and ponders over which number he will play next. Talented fingers and a toy piano named Sabastian kept a packed gym delighted.

roger williams and saint nick

RELAXED and friendly, students who crowded autograph table found pianist Williams as enjoyable off stage as on.

Roger Williams and his little friend Sabastian dueled in the Men's Gym to a delighted audience. A delighted Jim Gattis was crowned "Saint Nick" at the AWS Christmas Ball and an even more delighted Margaret Whistle was dubbed "Merry Christmas". To the surprise of all and the chagrin of some, the Razorback beauties were presented to the student body and a statewide radio audience at halftime of a Razorback basketball game. Television finally came to Fayetteville when a crew moved in to broadcast the Arkansas-Tech game over a six state area. Santa Claus never had so many imitators as each organized house threw up some tensil and lights, dressed for the occasion and wished everyone a very merry Christmas.

SAINTLY Jim Gattis, Sigma Nu candidate for Saint Nick, stands by as his date, Tri-Delt Margaret Whistle, receives a corsage and the title of "Merry Christmas". Carol Hinkle made the awards at the annual AWS Christmas dance.

TILTING DANGEROUSLY over the Christmas tree at Wilson Sharp House is resident Jim Collier. The athletes living in Wilson Sharp took an increased interest in campus affairs this year and added many new innovations to their social calendar.

CRESTFALLEN, or rather beard-fallen because his Christmas present seems to have been broken in transit, Santa Claus Bill Bagby begins to consider other ways to spend the evening. Sigma Nu President Don Mehlburger saved the day by producing another present from the bottom of his sack — this one full.

santa clauses come to town

KAPPAS and helpers spread greenery and bright lights above the snows surrounding their house in preparation for Christmas. Workers were rewarded with coffee and donuts.

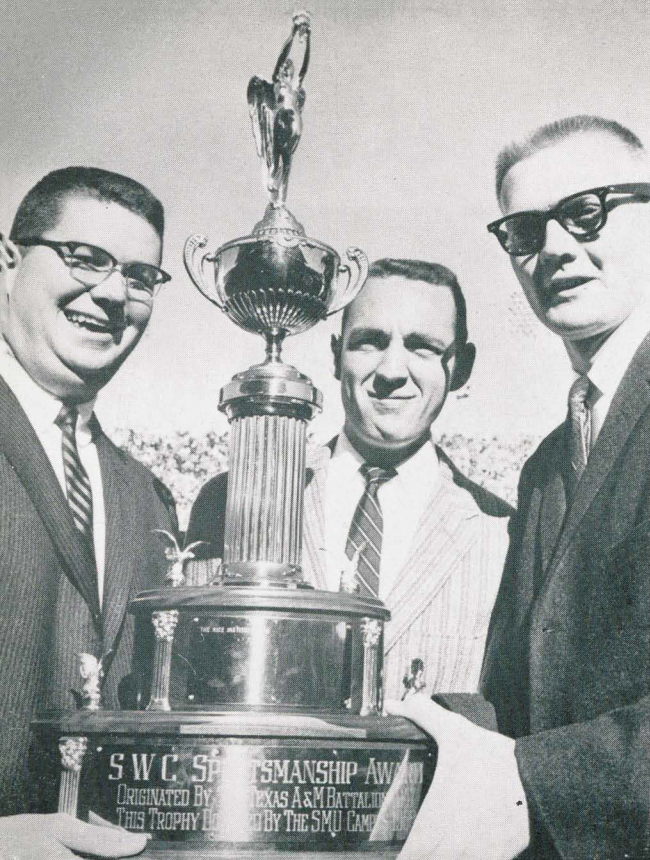

JOLLY RED DAVIS, Razorback tennis coach, plays Santa for a group of underprivileged children at the SAE house. The Alpha's party has become an annual affair. Last Christmas most of the University's organized houses held similar parties for kids.

CONTEMPLATING the scarcity of the beautiful food, Kappa Sigs and their dates can rest assured that, in terms of etiquette, their menu is correct. Passing through the hors d'oeuvre line are Ann Martin, Jack Tucker, Jim Limberg, Peggy McKinnon, Mark Williamson, and Betty Clark.

beauties, tv, and a trophy

TELEVISION FIRST occurred on January 3rd as a network covering the states of Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, Louisiana and Kansas broadcast the Arkansas-Texas Tech game from Barnhill Fieldhouse. The six-state audience saw the Razorbacks beat the Red Raiders in Arkansas' conference opener, 61-57.

SURPRISED as she is announced as one of the 1959 Razorback beauties, Kappa Martha Harris seems to be looking around for someone to tell her it's really true. Finally convinced, she was escorted to the center of the court to receive her bouquet.

"COOLING IT" in one of the year's numerous snowfalls, Zeta Lydia Lincoln enjoys a quick trip around the block. Lydia's ride came to a premature end when someone stepped on Ed Dozier's little car and pushed it completely out of sight beneath the snow.

SIDETRACKED temporarily from planning their January wedding, student body president Jim Connaway and his fiancée, Annette Lendal, study for final exams in the main library.

The end of the semester very seldom brings anything exciting. True, snow falls in fluries, grades fall in fluries, graduates leave in fluries, and students flury through registration, but that's about it. More people went through semester rush than ever before and Buddy Argo and the IFC got the fraternity rush program organized for a change. Over 5,500 students got in on the last chance to register for $75. As usual, the annual semester snowfall waited until the last day of final exams to unload on northwest Arkansas and many despairing students decided that they would hit the roads anyway after their miserable final exam performance. Classes started to no ones delight but our wage earning faculty.

UNWINDING after the first session in the night-long vigil in preparation for final exams, Zetas have a big laugh. It seemed that the longer the girls stayed up, the less it took for a laugh and the more incentive it took to make them hit the books again.

MYSTERIOUS light glows in front of the ChiO house between semesters. The reason it is mysterious is because I can't figure out what this damn picture signifies. The only reason it is in the book is that it's pretty and the only reason that I'm writing about it is because there is a place for writing next to the picture. It is kind of a nice picture, though.

SPECIAL PROGRAM of music was presented by the Schola Cantorum at the graduation exercise instead of the usual imported speaker. The Schola Cantorum was organized two years ago primarily for the exposition of religious music. Since its inception, it has been directed by Professor Richard Brothers.

adding names to the alumni files

HONORARY DEGREE was bestowed on prominent Little Rock industrialist Fred I. Brown by Board of Trustees Chairman, Judge Henry Yocum of El Dorado, Arkansas.

GRADUATES WALK onto the floor of John Barnhill Fieldhouse to receive their various degrees from their colleges and become, in most cases, alumni of the University of Arkansas. However, an increasing number of the graduates stayed to enter graduate work in their fields.

CLOSING PRAYER of the graduation exercises signaled an end of college life and a beginning, or commencement, of careers in the arts, business, or science. Since John Barnhill Fieldhouse was built, it has served as the scene of mid-year graduation, the spring graduation being held in the Razorback Stadium.

DELTA GAMMAS and rushees form a punch line for much needed refreshment at one of the semester rush parties. Second semester rushees were divided into groups and visited each sorority house for a preliminary party. Preferential parties were the next night.

MORE ORGANIZED, relatively speaking, due to the absence of so many totally disorganized freshmen, second semester enrollment was over 5,500 students.

registration and rush - riots

MOB SCENE took place at the Chi Omega house during semester rush. After visiting each sorority house for a preliminary party, rushees were submitted to two further ordeals when they returned to the two houses of their choice for further mutual inspection.

"ALL THAT MONEY — SHOT" seems to be the attitude of Kappa Pat Parker after paying a combinaion of her tuition, student entertainment fee, sports fee, lab fees, and other miscellaneous fees which are all lumped together in one back-breaking registration fee.

TOP-LEVEL DECISION is required and the department head, Dr. Claude Faulkner, is called in. Decision-makers in all departments were plagued by a lack of logic in nomenclature of courses among the departments, the unnecessary paperwork, and the remarkable duplicity of information blanks.

SERETOMA CLUB of Little Rock honored University of Arkansas Athletic Director John Barnhill with its annual "Service to Mankind" award. Head Coach Frank Broyles and Assistant Athletic Director George Cole were on hand for the presentation.

Simply, the Military Balls were successful. This is due partly to the fact that co-chairmen Nick Weedman and Lewis Barnard got a superior performance from Ralph Marterie and chairman George Jordan thanked his lucky stars that the Cell Block Seven were able to perform this visit. Student Union Week provided free coffee, attractive trash barrels, and a good excuse to cut class to use the Union for once as it should be used. Pi Phi Janet Rowland was the darling of the pledge classes as she was crowned IFPC Queen. Mike Cooney proved most popular in football huddles and was named "King Porker". And, it's a shame that the year couldn't have ended after the Kingston Trio concert for anything else is certainly anticlimactic.

RALPH MARGERIE and his Marlboro Men, so called possibly for purposes of advertisement, played for the annual Air Force Ball in the Men's Gym. Margerie's group was picked by Down Beat magazine as the year's best dance band for colleges.

RISKING DECAPITATION by the hands of Army ROTC cadets who might be unsteady by her brilliant smile, Hon. Cadet Colonel Sally Miler passes through the Sabre Arch to be formally presented to the cadets and their dates. Sally made many such appearances during the year, either as a Colonel or as Miss Arkansas.

FORMAL ATTIRE was in order for the Army Ball also held in the Men's Gym. Dressing in formal uniforms was relatively simple for the cadets since their formal uniform consists of the regular drill uniform with a white shirt and black bow tie. Female dress was more complicated.

judges pick flowers at talent show

AUDITIONING for a spot in the Southwest Intercollegiate Talent Show is freshman singer Penny Keen, accompanied by Bob Flowers, acting out the message of her song.

BOB FLOWERS and his Buds were easy winners in the Student Union Talent Show for the second consecutive year. Flowers and his trio presented an Errol Garner arrangement of "Angel Eyes".

STARRY-EYED new IFPC Queen, Pi Phi Janet Rowland, her starry eyes rather immersed in tears, clutches her roses in happiness after announcement. IFPC President Jerry Franks steps back to allow an admiring crowd a look at Queen and Court.

TUNING UP before appearing to a very appreciative audience in the Men's Gym, Dave Guard plucks his "long joe". Being the acknowledged leader of the group, Guard kept the merriment going between acts with his quick humor and caustic wit.

ABSORBED in their music and rhythm, the Trio advises the audience not to marry a zombie by relating a tale of the adventures of a non-zombie as he attends a graveyard "Zombie Jamboree" held on Long Island.

saro jane, saints and zombies

KING PORKER, Mike Cooney, is presented at intermission by Jim Connaway. Being called "King Porker" might seem a somewhat dubious honor, but no one at the University thinks this since they know that the award is made to the senior football player who is considered most outstanding by his teammates.

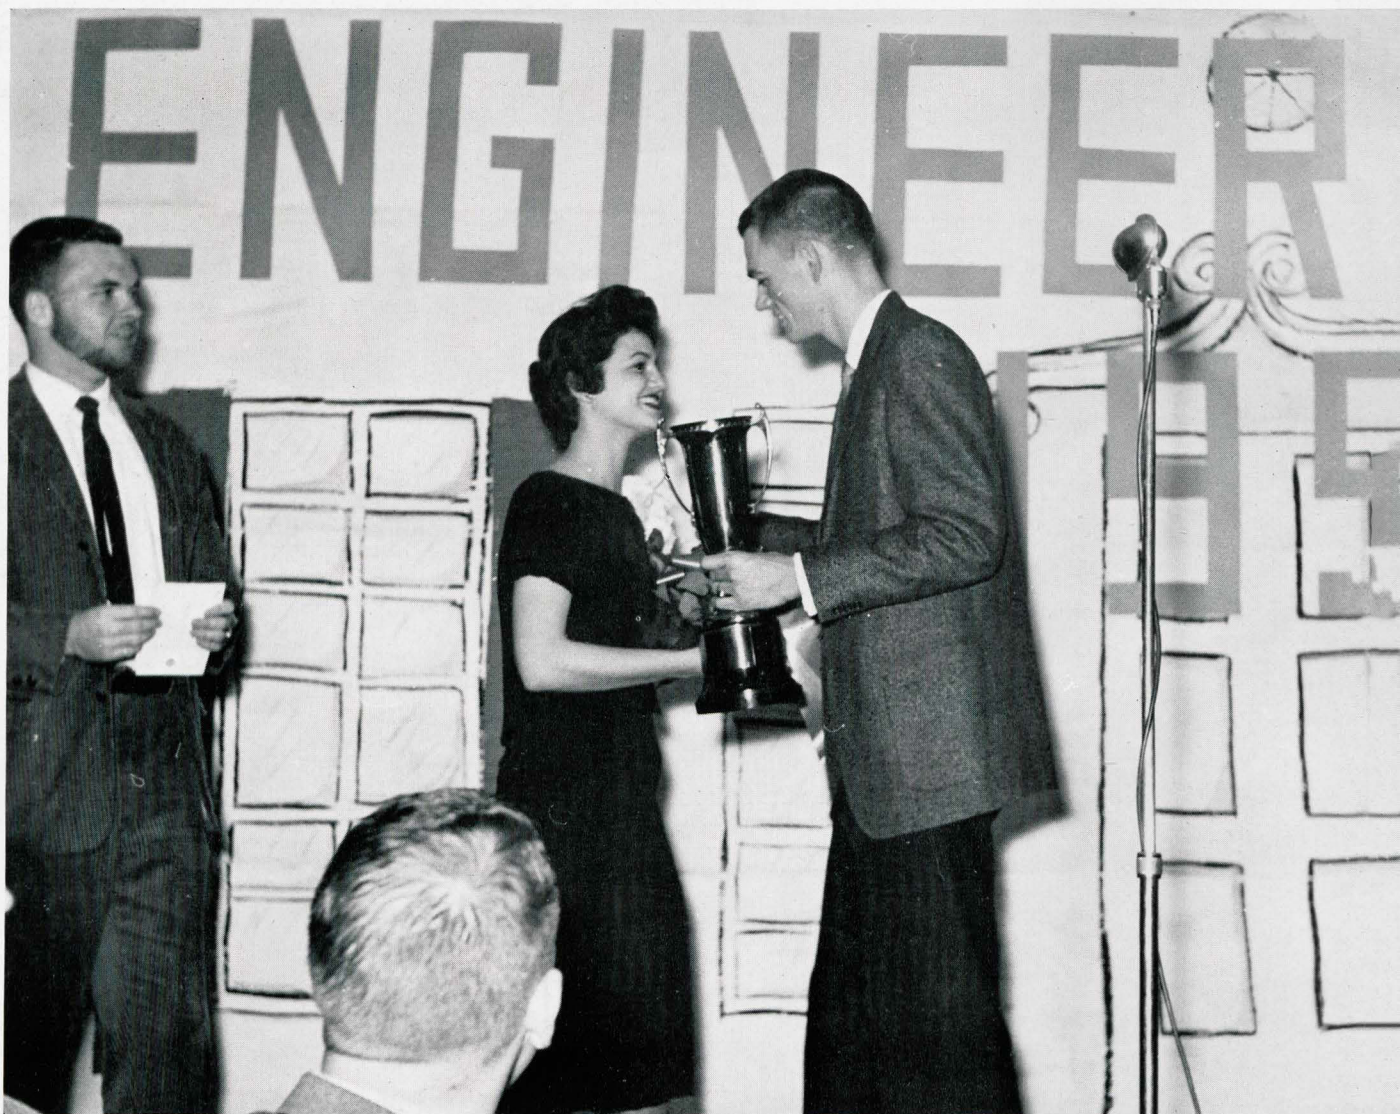

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE is received from the Trio's bass player, Buckwheat, by combination bongo drum player and guitarist, Nick Reynolds. Taking a last drag in the corner before going on stage is Bob Shane.

BASS BOOMS OUT as Buckwheat puts his arm into it to help the Trio along in their rendition of "They're Rioting in Africa". During the satirical song, seated guitarist Bob Shane only looked up long enough to utter "and I don't like anybody very much".

SAINTS of the College of Engineering become almost hopelessly emeshed in a combination of trophies, flowers, handshakes, and congratulatory kisses when St. Patrick, Charles Yates, comes to the stage to be crowned by the new St. Patricia, Tri-Delt Carol Swihart.

engineer's pick swihart, yates

THE LAST AGRI is dragged through the fire hydrant outside the Engine Building in the annual Engineer's Day tug-o-war. The engineer's victory ended a seven-year losing streak.

With the usual comments and some complaints about the activities of Engineer's Week, especially the Engineer's Rally, the activities of the engineer's proceeded to a successful conclusion in the election of St. Pat and St. Patricia. Tri-Delt Carol Swihart was elected to the St. Patricia title and Charles Yates, representing the A.I.E., was chosen St. Pat. REW went off smoothly although attendance at the night convocations was a faculty inflicted problem. The principle REW speaker was Dr. Martin Marty of Chicago, the associate editor of "Christian Century". The Civic Club made $1,800 for charity through the Campus Capers and awarded first prize to SAE-Chi Omega, second prize to Kappa Sigma-Holcombe, and third prize to Sigma Nu-Pi Beta Phi. PiKA Jerry Nall was installed as the new "Campus Lover".

AT PRACTICE ADPi's Sondra Hall, Sara Bridenthal, and Sue Quinn Wilson run through routine in support of O'Perciful for St. Patrick. Their dance was good but was in vain.

AT THE RALLY on the day preceding election day for the Saints, Zeta Barbara Browne does imitation of an Indian dance for the Engineers. Although the dance did not stir any redskins present to go on the warpath, all of the red-blooded whiteskins present were certainly stirred.

NINTH ANNUAL Sales Seminar conducted by the Little Rock Sales Executive Club in conjunction with the Marketing Department of the College of Business was climaxed at a luncheon meeting. Gerald Nesbitt and Chris Finkbeiner summarized the seminar message which was "Stay in Arkansas."

CHEERLEADER hopefuls worked vigorously each afternoon on the Old Main lawn. Celeste Cranor goes through the paces under the watchful eyes of Sarah Jane Melton.

THUMBING through the book selection in the Union lobby, casual observers ponder the messages presented. Books were loaned to the REW committee by the Baptist Bookstore of Little Rock.

DR. MARTIN MARTY addresses one of the evening convocations held in the Union. Members of the REW committee on stage, Ann Hutsell and Richard Bell, and the other committee members were plagued by sparse attendance because the faculty refused to dismiss classes for the religious talks.

SAILOR'S SALOON is one of the scenes from the Acacia-ADPi skit, "The Old Man and the Sea". Other scenes depicted phases of the old man's lost youth. Continuity throughout the scenes was achieved by the presence of the nostalgic old man, at side.

FIRST PLACE winners, SAE Chi Omega sat around the campfire while Ann Sherland, Roslyn Lander, and Carol Reavis portrayed three happy hoboes.

sae-chio skit tops campus capers

BING went the strings of world traveler Tom Capshaw's heart in the Kappa Alpha-Kappa Kappa Gamma skit as Ann Patton and her dark skinned natives convince Tom and Dr. Freud that Hawaii is an interesting island.

PATTING the cheek of PiKA Jerry Nall, the 1959 Campus Lover, is the co-chairman of the Campus Lover contest, Jan Graham. Civic Club President Benny Hays waits his turn to present the other trophies seen on the stage.

SIGMA NU-PI PHI skit was given third place for the presentation of their version of man-hungry women stranded on an island occupied by the stand-offish soldiers. Dancers are Ruth Jeryo, Gary Carroll, Janet Rowland, and Jack Sanders.

CUTTING SATIRE aimed at the University's infirmary was the theme of this scene from the Kappa Sigma-Holcombe skit. Participating in the satire are Dick Upton, Carol Ann Peters, and Ann Turner. Other schools in the State also came under fire as the skit walked away with a second place trophy.

Chester Lauck, "Lum" of the "Lum 'n Abner" radio series, made a point, a good one, and made it in an interesting and humorous fashion when he attacked the assumption of the national debt by future generations at the annual Commerce Day banquet. Chi Omega Anne Shaw was selected Commerce Queen and announced in the Guild Ticker at the banquet. The Agriculture students had their day, too, and their queen. Carolyn Files of the 4-H House was selected Agri Queen and Joyce Jenkins, also of the 4-H House, was selected Maid of Honor. In national competition at Washington, D.C., Carolyn Harris was named Cherry Blossom Princess. In intramural debate, Sigma Chi took the men's crown from SAE and Tri-Delt scored over Washington Hall in women's competition.

MOST HUMOROUS skit of the evening was the William-Carnall presentation of a "typical" ROTC inspection day, including other activities such as the selection of the Honorary Cadet Colonels and the cadence call, "M-I-C-K-E-Y M-O-U-S-E".

SOLDIERS, or, should we say, soldierettes, in regulation combat fatigues march in a scene from the Sigma Chi-Delta Delta Delta skit entitled "Looking for Kilroy". The Sigma Chi's in the marching scene are obscured by the leggy Tri-Delts, but, you know the old Chinese saying, "Who cares?"

GUEST SPEAKER at the Commerce Day banquet was Chet Lauck, presently public relations director for Conoco, and formerly Lum of the "Lum 'n Abner Show".

politics change the spring mood

WASHINGTON HALL debaters, Sandra Carter and Linda Lehnhard, confer on a point presented by the opposing Tri-Delt team composed of Betty Becker and Joan Freeze in the women's finals of the intramural debate tournament. The affirmative Tri-Delt team took the crown by proving the U. of A. should have honor system.

MARCHING through the annual election dance, a Law School band strutted and sounded off for their presidential candidate, Jack Files. The band was only a portion of candidates' appeals which resulted in a hotter campaign with greater interest and a larger vote.

AWED by campaign appeals of Barbara Barnes, Jeannie Bussell, Pat Neumeister, and Jim Minnier, a bewildered student figures how to escape.

Alan Sugg, Sigma Chi from Helena, defeated Jack Files, Law student from Hunter, 1361 to 1296, to become the new President of the Associated Students. Interest in campus politics was at an all-time high as witnessed by the record number of votes cast. Campaign procedures such as rallies, sound cars, and pamphlets which would have been considered ostentatious in recent years were accepted by harried students as part of another burden to bear. In a campaign highlighted by charges and counter-charges about the existence of a “machine”, Bob Fussell beat out Gerald Bowen for the Vice-Presidency. Lynn Wilcox was elected Secretary of the Associated Students over Elizabeth Brister in the run-off of a race which originally had five entrants. Ray Waters won out over Joe Buffalo, a write-in candidate, in the contest for Treasurer.

EXCITEMENT runs high as results of various races are posted on the tally board in the Student Union. Interested students came early and stayed late until the final tabulation was complete shortly before date call.

UNDERGRADUATE Alan Sugg pledged honesty, sincerity, and competence in his pre-election address in the Student Union ballroom. Opponents Max Reed and Jack Files both propped lengthy point platforms in their speeches at the pre-election dance.

The 1959 version of Gaebale, under the skillful direction of Dale Green, proved to be one of the most successful ever to hit the campus. The weekend provided a variety of events including a beauty show, varsity show, coaster classic, a concert and a dance. Miss Peggy Sue Limbaugh, a Chi Omega from Pocahontas, was named Miss U of A to get the festivities underway. Friday night was devoted entirely to the "professionalized" production of the varsity show, "Satires of '59". Early Saturday afternoon the classics raced out of control down Maple Street taking several casualties. Male vocalist Al Hibbler encored his way through a well received concert in the late afternoon. Green concluded his weekend schedule with the Gaebale dance which featured Chuck Berry, famous rock 'n roll star. A good weekend, not readily forgotten.

CAPACITY crowd was on hand for the Al Hibbler concert in the Men's Gym Saturday afternoon. Hibbler, with his varied style, kept the crowd entertained throughout the concert and found them applauding for more as the big show came to an end.

GAEBALE DIRECTOR Dale Green assembled a varied and successful weekend with several "firsts" that met the approval of the crowds. Green instituted a "professional" varsity show with original song, book and lyrics by Bob Green. Green also switched the concert to the afternoon, concluded the weekend with a rock 'n roll band.

AL HIBBLER, one of the most versatile names in show business, entertained a capacity crowd in the Men's Gym with an afternoon concert. The renowned blind vocalist sang several old selections then changed tempo and gave his renditions to numerous modern day ballads.

CLANKING guitarist Charles 'Chuck' Berry kept the majority of the student body on campus for the dance and halted usual precedent of the Shamrock for Gaebale dances.

FIRST PLACE trophy for both speed and design was presented to the Phi Delta Theta driver. Competition was keen, but limited as only a bare majority of the racers reached the finish line intact.

SENSATIONAL CLIMAX for all of the University's '59 features was the big fire at the Kappa Gamma house. Firemen estimated the damage of the third floor blaze at $20,000, mostly from water.

governor of arkansas

ORVAL E. FAUBUS

An ardent booster of the University of Arkansas, Governor Orval E. Faubus has found time for active participation in University affairs. For example, he attended the Dad's Day and Tulsa games here and also crowned the Homecoming Queen this fall. The Governor played an instrumental role in last November's passing of the increase appropriation for the University. Faubus was born, raised, and educated in nearby Madison County. Following a tour of duty in the Army in World War II, he returned to Arkansas to become county clerk in Madison County, postmaster at Huntsville, a member of the State Highway Commission, and administrative assistant to former Governor Sid McMath. Elected first in 1954, then re-elected in 1956 and 1958, he is now serving an almost unprecedented third term as Governor of the State of Arkansas. The Governor is a member of the Baptist Church, the Masonic Lodge, and is a 32nd Degree Mason.

JOHN TYLER CALDWELL

President of the University John Tyler Caldwell has attained national prominence in the field of education. He has served in such positions as a junior economist with the United States Resettlement Administration, and educational consultant to the Ministry of Education for the Ford Foundation in Pakistan. Dr. Caldwell came to the University seven years ago from Alabama College in Montevallo, Alabama. Progress has been the keynote of his administration. The academic program has been broadened and strengthened by upgrading scholastic standards. Completion of new Medical Center and construction of eleven major buildings on the Fayetteville campus have taken place during his tenure in office. A new freshmen girl's dormitory will be ready for use next fall. Dr. Caldwell is characterized at the University by his cordial attitude toward students, and ambition for high education. He received his B.S. degree from Mississippi State College in 1932. He earned his Ph.D. in 1939 from Princeton University and became an instructor of political science at Vanderbilt University. Following the war, he became President of Alabama College where he remained until accepting his present position with the University.

“Resolved, that past-graduates be permitted to attend any lectures or recitations free of charge except as contingent deposit $7.00 per term for Chemicals” — excerpt from faculty minutes May 23, 1879. “The Graduate Council recommends the approval of a Doctor of Philosophy program in Business Administration” — excerpt from faculty minutes December 19, 1958. Today, the University Senate is the ruling legislative body of the University on the educational policies and programs of the University. The Senate functions under the Board of Trustees which sets the over-all policy of the University. Members of the Senate are the administrative officers of the University as well as professors who have had at least two years of experience on the faculty. The Senate is broken down into two sections: the main body located on the Fayetteville Campus, presiding over general academic policies; and the second portion located at Little Rock, with primary jurisdiction over the Schools of Medicine, Pharmacy, Nursing, and the Graduate Center. Dr. Claude W. Faulkner is presently serving as President of the U of A Senate. The Senate Council is the legislative body of the Senate. It is composed of one member elected for each 25 members of each college faculty, and representatives of the administration. The Council reviews legislation introduced by the Senate and has the power to initiate as well. The President of the University, John T. Caldwell, is Chairman of the Senate Council and Carter A. Short, Registrar, is acting as secretary for both the Senate and Senate Council.

LEWIS H. ROHRBAUGH

As Vice President and Provost, Dr. Lewis H. Rohrbaugh performs a dual role. As Vice President of the University he is the "Number 2" executive and in this capacity is responsible for budget development and certain other phases of fiscal management and coordination of University research. As Provost, he is chief academic officer. The Colleges, schools, and centers in Fayetteville and Little Rock, except the Medical Center, are responsible to him as are the libraries, registrar, and division of student affairs. Dr. Rohrbaugh, a native of Maryland, came to the University in 1954 from the American Council on Education where he was Special Associate to the President. He attended Dickinson College and did graduate work at Cornell and University of Pennsylvania. His degrees include Ph.B., Ph.D., and Sc.D. With more than a quarter of a century's experience in educational administration, he has served in both international and domestic positions. Last July-September Dr. Rohrbaugh was in Peru as a consultant to the World Bank, having been borrowed by the Bank to advise on organization and administrative problems of the Republic of Peru.

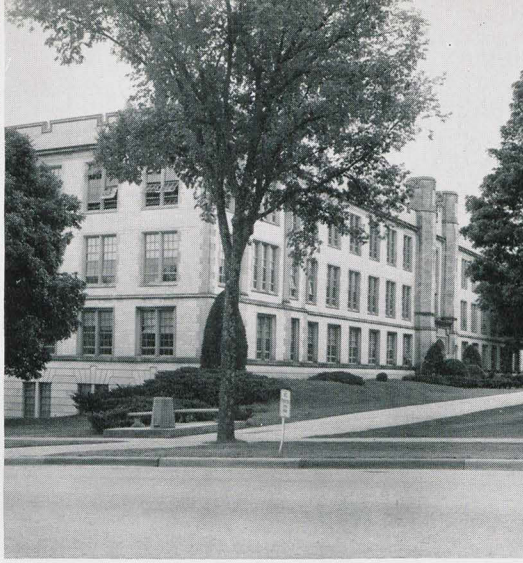

vice-president and treasurer

JAMES E. POMFRET

Business operations at the Main Campus of the University of Arkansas and the Medical Center in Little Rock are the primary function of the Vice-President for Business. His duties include: operation of auxiliary services such as housing, food service, and maintenance of the physical plant. The person responsible for these areas is James E. Pomfret, a graduate of the College of Business Administration, who joined the staff in 1948. Steadily rising, he was promoted to chief accountant in 1949, and became purchasing agent and controller in 1954, and then business manager in 1957. A native of Philadelphia, Penn., he graduated from South Philadelphia High School for Boys. He attended the University of Pennsylvania and Charles Morris Price School in Philadelphia, before coming to the University of Arkansas. His past work experience includes business positions with Philadelphia Electric Co., Kresge Co., and Sears-Roebuck. He is a veteran of World War II. Drafted in 1941 as a private, he was discharged a captain in 1945. Pomfret is 43 years old and is a member of the Board of Elders of the First Presbyterian Church at Fayetteville. He is married and the father of three children.

Headquartered in the historic landmark Old Main, the College of Arts and Sciences has the largest enrollment and encompasses the most varied fields of any of the colleges. Founded with the University, the College of Arts and Sciences has now grown in enrollment to more than 1,500 students who may be found attending classes in more than half of the buildings on the campus. In order to furnish a broad bases for the graduate of Arts and Sciences, all students who enter this college are required to follow its basic program which, along with a major subject, leads to one of the four degrees offered. Besides having the largest number of departments—twenty-three—and the largest variety of major fields on the campus, the “Arts” school boasts a faculty which accomplishes almost sixty percent of the teaching done at the University. The man who manages to hold all these departments together and keeps them functioning smoothly is Dean Guerdon D. Nichols, a native of Iowa who assumed his position in 1947. With the able assistance of O. W. McMillen, Dean Nichols handles not only the administrative affairs of the college, but also maintains high educational standards despite the handicaps of inadequate space and increased enrollment. The adoption of an honors program by the College of Arts and Sciences enables all students maintaining a B average or better to pursue independent advanced study beyond that which is required for graduation. By selected reading, extensive research, and participation in certain honor sections the student is eligible for graduation with honors.

college of agriculture, home economics

DEAN LIPPERT S. ELLIS

In 1874 the first separate division of the original Arkansas Industrial University came into being as the division of Agriculture. As the value of this division to Arkansas agrarian economy became more evident, the Board of the University decided in 1892 to create the College of Agriculture. The Department of Home Economics was moved from the College of Education to the Agri School in 1914 where it remains today as an integral part of the curriculum. Although the "Agri School" has operated its experimental projects as far from the campus as Panama, its most outstanding work has been done here in the state. Service to the farmers of Arkansas is rendered through experimental stations located throughout the state. These experimental centers, as well as numerous substations, conduct research projects designed to aid in the scientific advancement of Arkansas farming methods. Degrees offered by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics include B.S.A. and B.S.H.E. The student may choose from a large variety of major fields. Physical expansion has been rapid in recent years. The construction of a new animal science building and an open-air pavillion in the Agricultural park have added valuable space to this expanding College. Dean Lippert S. Ellis serves as director of the University's numerous agricultural experimental stations and supervises the overall program of the College of Agriculture. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin, Dean Ellis taught at Oklahoma A&M and worked with the U.S. Department of Agriculture before coming to Arkansas in 1946.

college of business administration

Since the College of Business Administration changed to a four year course in 1937, it has been growing steadily. Before that, it was a two year division of Arts and Sciences. Now it offers over fifty different courses from which a student may choose. The fall enrollment was 1,133 students. Nine hundred and thirty-five of these are boys, and one hundred ninety-eight are girls. Compared to the figures of several years ago, this certainly proves that the female sex has invaded the business world. One feature of the Business School which is quite outstanding is its wide range of activities with large student participation and its program of student government. Dean Paul W. Milam heads the college. A native of Arkansas, he came to the University in 1944, having earned his Ph.D. at New York University. Dr. M. G. Bridenstine directs long-range research carried through the Bureau of Business and Economic Research which publishes a quarterly bulletin on business conditions in Arkansas. Other parts of the school's activities include helping the state find locations for industry and boosting industrial possibilities. Job conferences for future graduates are arranged, and Commerce Day and sales seminars are other well known functions.

college of education

HIDDEN in the trees — Peabody Hall.

With the emphasis today on education and qualified teachers, the College of Education serves as a vital part of the U. of A. Although it has only 650 students, the college offers education courses to students in other colleges. These visitors are qualified as teachers if they have planned their schedule correctly. They usually come from the Colleges of Business, Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, and Home Economics. Any qualified student who wishes to find a teaching position may file an application to the Teacher's Placement Bureau. These applications are then sent to several schools along with character references and a transcript of the student's grades. Usually, the Bureau finds the applicant a suitable position. In 1917 the College of Education was established as a separate division of the Arkansas Industrial University. Training is now offered in three fields of teaching: elementary and secondary education, vocational education, and physical education. The prospective teachers get classroom experience in the University training school located in Peabody Hall. Students may also train to be teachers of the deaf through the use of facilities at the Arkansas School for the Deaf. This requires three years of training in Fayetteville and one year in Little Rock.

college of engineering

If the percentages of past years hold true, about forty percent of the 1,225 students enrolled in the College of Engineering at the University of Arkansas at the present time will eventually graduate with a degree from this college. According to Dean George F. Branigan, this is actually a good record. It indicates why this school is noted for its tough curriculum. There are six fields from which a student may choose his major: agricultural, civil, chemical, electrical, mechanical, and industrial engineering. Of the eight girls in the college, six are majoring in chemical engineering, one in electrical engineering, and one in industrial engineering. Space shortages are the main difficulties of the college at the present. This was somewhat alleviated when the University received the old Oberman Building which accomodates drawing and design labs as well as the General Extension Office. There are no immediate plans for a new building, but expansion is hoped for in the future. Students of this college can usually be recognized by the slide rules they carry, or by the beards they sport in the spring. The beards are grown for "Engineers Week," a gala festival topped off by St. Patrick's Day and the election of St. Pat and St. Patricia.

graduate school

OLD Main — focal point of graduate school.

Late hours, hard work and inevitable rewards are only a few of the numerous characteristics of the Graduate School. This academic program is under the capable guidance of Dean Virgil Adkisson. The school offers advanced degrees in nearly fifty different fields, with emphasis placed on research work on the graduate level. Although a majority of the graduate work is done in science, the student may choose his graduate speciality in fields ranging from physical education to political science. Under the direction of Dean Adkisson, director of the Graduate School since 1949, the department has been greatly expanded by progressive planning and coordination of student activity on an individual level. A number of new innovations are being planned for 1959. These include the expansion of the PhD program with special emphasis placed on literature, and expansion of the new Graduate Institute of Technology in Little Rock. This new unit occupies a part of the old site of the University Medical School, and was provided for by a $6,000,000 appropriation from the State Legislature. The Graduate School also expects to qualify early next year for participation under the National Defense Education Act. This is a plan that provides for financial assistance to universities for expansion and development of their graduate programs.

The University of Arkansas School of Law was established in 1924. It follows the standards of legal education prescribed by the American Bar Association, and since 1927 has been a fully accredited member of the Association of American Law Schools. In 1953, the School moved into Waterman Hall, which is an attractive new building planned for the special need of law students and faculty. For study purposes, there is the spacious library containing 35,000 volumes. Also, much activity is found in the modernistic courtroom where moot court is held frequently; and where the University Student Senate rules on violations of University regulations. The entire program of the Law School is capably directed by Ralph Clayton Barnhart, who assumed the position of Dean and Professor of Law this fall. Dean Barnhart received his LL.B. degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1934 and has been at the University for the past thirteen years as a teacher. Graduates of the Law School here have joined law firms, gone into government service, or accepted positions in the business world. A number however, still successfully follow the old American tradition of hanging out a shingle for private practice in their own offices.

One of the outstanding features of the University of Arkansas, which is pointed out with pride by those connected with it, is the Medical Center located in Little Rock. Built at a cost of over fourteen million dollars and dedicated in the spring of 1957, it ranked among the outstanding medical facilities in the nation. Practicality is stressed at the Center. The students, under the strict guidance of their instructors, participate in diagnosis as well as laboratory work for each of the patients. Thus, when a student graduates from the Medical School, he has had a great deal of actual experience as well as classroom instruction. This also holds true for Pharmacy and Nursing students. The entire program of the center is under the direction of Dr. F. Douglas Lawrason, the University's Provost for Medical Affairs. Also included in these facilities is the University's School of Pharmacy. It is headed by Dean Stanley G. Mittelstaedt and is the smallest college of the University of Arkansas. Another important part of the Medical Center is the School of Nursing, under the direction of Dean Julia M. Miller. Started in the 1952-1953 school year, it is the youngest college in the University program. It is also among the newest of some two hundred university schools of nursing. The plan offers a split curriculum of two years in Fayetteville and two years in Little Rock for a degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing. Practical experience is also stressed here as time is spent in such fields as the hospital, public health agencies, and the home. The School of Nursing is accredited by the National League for Nursing, and the program of the School of Nursing has been approved by the Arkansas State Board of Nurse Examiners, the licensing body of the State. The newest addition to the Medical Center will be a dormitory for the students. It should be available for use by the fall term.

MEDICAL CENTER, built at a cost of over fourteen million dollars, is one of the finest equipped of its kind. Located in Little Rock, the modern brick, glass structure was dedicated in spring of 1957.

the division of student affairs

The Division of Student Affairs serves as the nerve center for student activities at the University of Arkansas. On any given day the office will receive some sixty-seven telephone calls and an average of fifty-four students will drop by for one reason or another. A look at daily activities would disclose staff members counseling with students about personal and financial problems. Also, in a nearby room a group of students will be in a discussion with another staff member concerning student government, fraternities, sororities or other campus activities. The telephone will ring and someone will arrange for an appointment. A second phone will ring and a student will inquire about a meeting time and place. Still another call from a Traveler staff writer to inquire if any serious automobile accidents occurred over a holiday period. The next would reveal a student calling to make arrangements for an aptitude examination. The people who staff this central office are Dr. D. W. Halladay, Dean of Students, who is in charge of the total program of the Division of Student Affairs which includes the central office, student housing, student health services, student placement, food service, the Student Union program, testing program and the other out-of-class activities of students at the University.

DEAN D. WHITNEY HALLADAY has been director of the Division of Student Affairs since 1955. Final responsibility for discipline problems of students rest on Dean Halladay's shoulders. Success of his efforts is shown in the fact that no grave discipline problems have arisen which affected entire student body since his arrival.

Directly assisting in this broad program is Miss Eleanor Tyler, Associate Dean of Students and Dean of Women, who is responsible also for the women's program. Assisting Miss Tyler is Miss Grace Vineyard who has the major responsibility for freshmen women.

Serving as assistant Dean of Men is Mr. James H. Scott who is directly concerned with the fraternity program, international students, and the University-wide counseling program. The broad area of student aid which includes scholarships and loans is handled by Mr. Robert L. Jones, Assistant Dean of Students. Mrs. Joy Heird and Mrs. Lovena Wallace, both student wives, serve as secretaries. Departments within the Division of Student Affairs are headed by Mr. R. M. Jones, University Housing; Dr. Fount Richardson, Student Health Service; Mr. Louis D. Trager, Placement Office; Mr. Walter Werman, Food Service; Mrs. Earle Lawrence, Student Union; Dr. Glenn Cole, University Testing Service. Formerly, the direct administration of student affairs consisted only of a Dean of Men and a Dean of Women. However, in 1955, with the addition of Halladay to the staff, the Division of Student Affairs was installed and set up on its present basis.

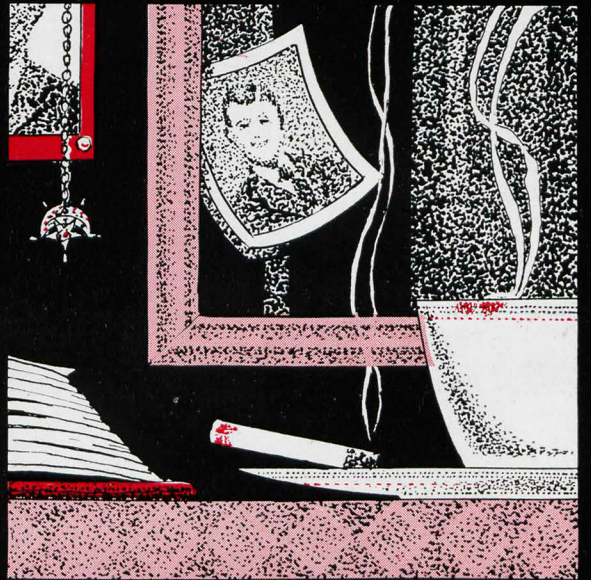

CONTROLLING all affairs of women students at the University is Miss Eleanor Tyler, Dean of Women. Miss Tyler has been serving in this capacity since 1955 and is also the Assistant Dean of Students.

delta delta chapter of ALPHA DELTA PI

The wearers of the diamond pin entered into their second successful year on the campus of the University with many activities and honors attached to their name. With its new housemother, Mrs. E. J. Dyess, and a successful rush, Alpha Delta Pi began the year participating fully in all phases of campus life. The ADPi's had a full social calendar which included such social events as the introductory tea for their housemother and the officers in the fall, dinner for the football team, exchange dinners, dinner-dance honoring their new pledge class, Christmas party for their dates, Plantation Garden formal, and the annual spring outing. Although Alpha Delta Pi is young, it has attained a good part of the honors in organizations offered on campus. Gail

psi chapter of CHI OMEGA

Chi Omegas brought to the mother chapter honors in scholarship, beauty, and activities this past year. Weezie Carter won the Miss U of A title; Ann Martin was chosen Pershing Rifles Honorary Captain; Ann Shaw was elected Air Force Lt. Colonel and Commerce Queen; Peggy Perry was selected Razorback beauty; and fraternity sweethearts: Norma White, Sigma Pi; Jane Brockman, Lambda Chi Alpha; and Barbara Hannah, Sigma Nu. Besides their beauty awards, the sorority had many campus leaders. Patty Pyeatt, Pat Cross, Eleanor Ellis, Jeanne Middleton, and Billie Ann Beaumont, Mortar Board; Eleanor Ellis, Patty Pyeatt, Ann Foster, and Jeanne Middleton, Phi Beta Kappa; Eleanor Ellis, Patty Pyeatt, Pat Cross, Who's Who; Edwene

Stevens, Lambda Iota Tau president and Razorback class editor; Marjorie Sims was elected sophomore counselor president; Polly DuVal represented the education college in the student senate; Marilyn Crawford served as Orchesis president; Carolyn Harris was head cheerleader and Homecoming maid; and Barbara Braly was a senior counselor. During the Homecoming festivities, Chi Omega took 1st place in house decoration with their "banana bongoers" and a second place trophy was won for their Homecoming float in a tie with Holcombe. The women's scholarship cup also went to Chi Omega for the highest women's grade point last year. In addition, the ChiO's were runner-ups in the Sigma Nu relays, placed third in Singfony, and won Campus Capers.

LIBERACE visited the ChiO house in the person of Marilyn Crawford as she dropped in for a talk about Chi Omega with Carolyn Harris in a skit presented to benefit the rushees.

delta iota chapter of DELTA DELTA DELTA

Tri Delts carried a full social and activity season this past year bringing many awards in numerous fields to their sorority. In the social field, the Delta Iota chapter entertained at their annual pledge debut dinner-dance, football banquet, Christmas party, Halloween party, faculty tea, fall tea, scholastic banquet, Founder's Day banquet, and "coke-tail" parties honoring the campus fraternities. In the beauty competition, Janelle Dixon reigned as Homecoming queen for the Razorbacks and Nancy Garner served as a maid; Connie Buell was selected as Razorback beauty; Margaret Whistle was chosen as Miss Merry Christmas and Miss U of A runnerup. Carol Swihart reigned as the Engineer's Saint Patricia. In the activity field, Jo Wilbourn, Elizabeth Osborne, and Margaret Whistle were elected to Mortar Board; Jo Wilbourn, Who's Who; Sarah Jane Melton, cheerleader; Ellen Compton, AWS secretary and senior counselor and was chosen AWS president for next year; Carol Bess Proctor, senior counselor; Norwyn Johnston, AWS chairman for fashion and etiquette; Elizabeth Melton, AWS social chairman and chairman of Commerce day; Elizabeth Osborne, Chi Theta president; Julia Mae Rumph, Traveler feature editor; Jo Wilbourn, PiKA Dream Girl; and the sorority placed first in the Sigma Nu relays.

DUNKED but not discouraged, Tri-Delt tug-of-warrers enjoyed the whole thing because there was no pressure, the team had clinched their second trophy in three years in earlier events.

alpha omega chapter of DELTA GAMMA

Expansion was the big word this spring at the DG house as workmen began tearing down the annex so that construction could begin on their new addition. Socially, the Delta Gamma's held the Pinafore party, football banquet, pledge dinner-dance, exchange dinners, cookie shines after date call, Little Rock Alumni Christmas tea, Founder's Day dinner, Mother's Day luncheon and a spring outing. Those entering into active campus affairs were Carol Hinkle, who was elected AWS president, selected for Who's Who and Mortar Board, and was a member of the student senate; Marsha Crawford, who was president of Panhellenic, a member of the senate, selected for Who's Who and elected secretary of the senior class in Business School; Julie Dil-lard, who was elected secretary of the Marketing Club and vice president of Chi Theta; Maretta Moore, who was chosen historian of Chi Theta; Betty Houchin, who worked capably as Traveler society editor, chairman of the Elementary Club publicity committee, and on the executive committee of the Elementary Club; Virginia Price, who was associate editor of the Agriculturist; Diana Vinson, who served as a senior counselor and was chairman of the AWS office management committee; Jan Khilling, who was on the WRA executive board. Delta Gamma's special project this year was coordinated with the fraternity's national project, sight conservation and aid to the blind.

PINAFORE PARTY is the big event of the year for Delta Gammas, it was also a big event for Bill Donald and Joyce Hoover who found the conversation and the whole evening amusing.

arkansas alpha chapter of PI BETA PHI

Rush week for the Pi Phis provided the kick-off for another eventful year in which participation in campus affairs and social activities was successfully combined. Highlighting the year was the visit of Mrs. Lowell L. Knipmeyer, Province President, and Mrs. James F. Speaker, Grand Secretary. Also included in the social world were the pledge dance, Christmas party, Christmas faculty tea, fall outing, lock-out and Halloween party, and the annual formal. Active in campus activities were Jan Graham, who was elected president of Mortar Board and vice president of ABC; Jane Collier, who served as a cheerleader and arrangement chairman for Gaebale; Barbara Simpson, who was also tapped by Mortar Board and was vice president of the Business School; Judy Gilbert, who worked as a senior counselor; Nikki Polychron, who was elected student body secretary; Karo Kampbell, who was AWS treasurer and senior class secretary; Jane Parkin, who served in the student senate; Jo Ann Finley, who was Razorback beauty editor; Karo Kampbell, Jan Graham, and Barbara Simpson, who were chosen to Who's Who; Margaret Head, who was AWS student-faculty relations committee head. Beauty winners included Sally Miller who was chosen Honorary Cadet Colonel of the Army ROTC and was the reigning Miss Arkansas; Jackie Sanders and Patti Pulliam who were chosen Honorary Lt. Colonels of the Air Force; and Janet Rowland who was named pledge queen at the IFPC dance.

epsilon chapter of ZETA TAU ALPHA

The Zetas proved to be an active group on the campus this year by attaining many of the high honors and offices in campus organizations and capturing numerous beauty awards. Linda Goodwin and Ruth Jolly served as maids in the Homecoming court; DiAnne Gordon was selected as Razorback beauty; Willa Charlton was elected to Who's Who, Phi Beta Kappa, Mortar Board, and served as honors council president and chairman of the SU board; Bette Cooper was selected to Who's Who, served as secretary of SU central planning board and editor of the Preview; Dean Stoddard was REW chairman, ass't. editor of the Preview, AWS publicity chairman; Sue Claughton was selected for Mortar Board; Ann Adams was Tau Beta Sigma vice-president; Linda Durham served as SU talent committee chairman;

Sallie Jo Anderson held chairmanship of SU film committee; Lynn Wilcox was Razorback exchange editor; Nickie Hultsman and Mary Bowden were senior counselors; Peggy Tatum served as Alpha Lambda Delta president; Faye Nell Ligon and Philia Drew were members of the student senate; Peggy Killough was treasurer of Panhellenic council; and Judy Rothe was secretary of the national honorary Spanish fraternity. Zeta tied with the Kappas for first place in the Homecoming float competition. Their social activities included exchange dinners, pledge dinner-dance, Christmas party, faculty tea, cake walk by the pledge class, Mardi Gras spring formal and open houses for fraternities and football players.

OFF TO CLASS are Zetas who stop at door to admire their unique Christmas decorations. Each Active and her pledge daughter put their name on a stocking and hung them on front columns.

interfraternity council

In serving as the coordinating body for all of the fraternities here at the University, the IFC mediates fraternity differences and serves as the governing body for male Greeks. The biggest undertaking of the year for IFC was the retreat at Noel, Missouri where the problem of deferred rush was discussed. It was the unanimous opinion of IFC that deferred rush was not acceptable for the fraternity system here at the University.

interfraternity pledge council

Serving the same purpose as IFC and Panhellenic, the IFPC serves both the fraternity pledges and the sorority pledges. Each fraternity and sorority is entitled to two representatives and their main job is to supervise the annual pledge dance. At this dance, Miss Janet Rowland, a Pi Beta Phi pledge, was selected as Pledge Queen of 1958 by a popular vote of all male pledges here at the University.

Each year Panhellenic Council awards a cup to the pledge class which makes the highest grade average. Again, this trophy was presented to the Chi Omega pledges for their outstanding scholarship. Panhellenic is composed of the presidents and rush captains of each sorority and it is the governing board for sororities here at the University. Any disciplinary matters concerning the sororities are brought before Panhellenic for vote on recommended action. The matter is then turned over to the Dean's office for enforcement.

VIKING SHIP was the Acacia float entry in the Homecoming parade and although it did not win a prize, many considered it to be one of the most colorful and one of the top entries in the parade.

arkansas chapter of ACACIA

Acacia has earned the reputation of producing men of leadership and scholarship at Arkansas. Annually, the fraternity ranks among the campus leaders for over all men's cumulative grade average. On the campus this year were Louis Bracy who was president of the pledge class of the Arkansas Booster Club; Dudley Bumpass who was a member of the Interfraternity Council rush committee; Ed Jeter who was photography editor of the Razorback; Reynolds Griffith and Charlie McCarthy who were on the executive council of the Young Democrats Club; Charles Shaddox who was president of Tau Kappa Alpha and a member of the crack University debating team. Social events included the Shipwreck Ball, the spring formal, the Founder's Day banquet, sorority exchange dinners, open houses after the football games, and a host of weekend parties at the house. Nationally, Acacia was founded by Master Masons who named it after an eastern evergreen. The fraternity has maintained very strong ties with the Masons who this year launched a statewide drive to raise funds for the Acacia building fund. Plans are being formulated by the fraternity to build a new house on Stadium Drive between Wilson Sharp and the Phi Delta Theta house. This house will be of modern design and will greatly expand the facilities of this young and growing brotherhood. The members of the fraternity hope to complete their drive by the end of this year.

SERENADING their housemother, the men of Acacia form their fraternity pin for the serenade. Such symbols of fraternalism are ever present in the white frame house on Arkansas Avenue.

alpha iota chapter of ALPHA GAMMA RHO

Known nationally for its contribution of leading men to the field of agriculture, Alpha Iota strives to uphold this goal on a local level. Outstanding men of AGR on the campus included Don Toon who was tapped by Omicron Delta Kappa and also served as a member of the student senate; Clark Crum who handled finances for the Arkansas Agriculturist as the business manager; and Jim Mills who served as president of the Animal Industry Club. Alpha Gamma Rho does not participate in the fall and semester rush programs, preferring to extend bids by the more selected method of open rush. It does however participate in all other Greek activities on the campus. Socially, the members enjoy the annual Rooster dance to top off fall activities and the Pink Rose formal in the spring. In addition, the house is always open to guests after football games, as well as on weekend nights for members and their dates. Alpha Gamma Rho also stresses scholarship and the fraternity ranks high every year in scholarship. The men will soon leave the old house at the corner of Arkansas Avenue and Maple Street for a new home to the west of the football stadium. This house is being designed by the prominent Arkansas alumni and architect Ed Stone. It will be a very modern construction and the plans have been completed. Construction began on the first of May and the present work schedule calls for the house to be completed by the beginning of school next fall.

PADDLING dates was quite the fad at the fall Rooster dance as AGR men had to beware the big stick. Dancing was popular because the men were cautious of sitting after the paddle party.

EXCHANGE DINNER at the ATO house meant extra work for hashers Oscar Hall and Keith Garton as the fraternity went all out this year when the sorority girls were due to visit.

alpha xi chapter of ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Founded on the University campus in 1882, Alpha Xi chapter started the year with a reception for their new housemother, Mrs. Ruth Johanson of Tulsa. "Help Week" got under way soon after this event as the ATOs asked the members of Kappa Kappa Gamma to join them in working on their annual project. Together, the two Greeks fixed up an old widow's home by painting, papering and repairing inside, reroofing the top, and constructing a new porch. In campus activities, Alpha Xi was represented by Max Reed who served as treasurer of the student body, president of the Interfraternity Council, vice president of the College of Business, a member of the student senate, a member of the student-faculty forum, was selected for Who's Who and tapped by Omicron Delta Kappa. Bob Eichberger was named Air Force Provost Marshall and served as pledge master for Scabbard and Blade. In addition, he was initiated into the Arnold Air Society and served as chairman of the reception committee for the Air Force Ball. Socially, the members of ATO enjoyed their Snow Flake Whirl, Sack Hop, White Tea Rose Ball, and the Playboy Party.

SATIRICAL choo-choo constructed for Homecoming by the ATOs was one of the cleverest and most original decorations for the big day. Although it did not win, it drew wide interest.

arkansas chapter of FARM HOUSE

For the ninth consecutive semester Farm House has led all other houses on the University campus in cumulative grade average. Striving for scholastic excellence is the goal of this fraternity. Nationally, the fraternity leads all other social fraternities in grade point cumulative. However, the men here at Arkansas do not neglect their social life as they have their annual Christmas dance, the Farm House Sweetheart banquet, pledge party and outing, and many parties and open houses after the football games and on weekends. Farm House is particularly active in campus activities, especially in the College of Agriculture. In its ranks are members of Alpha Zeta, Animal Industry Club, the judging team, and the Agri Student's Association. Also, the fraternity competes in the full intramural program as well as being a member in full standing of the Interfraternity Council. Membership in this fraternity is restricted to male students whose studies will eventually lead to a degree in agriculture. Needless to say, prospective members must rank high scholastically in their chosen field of agriculture.

GATHERING around the piano after supper is a favorite pastime of the men in the Farm House. These leaders maintain that relaxation after mea's is a good start to a good night's studying.

alpha omicron chapter of KAPPA ALPHA

Founded in 1865 on the campus of Washington and Lee, Kappa Alpha came to the University of Arkansas in 1895. Since its arrival at the University many prominent Arkansans have worn the KA pin from Alpha Omicron. Presently, Kappa Alpha is active in all phases of campus activities and the chapter strives to achieve a well rounded life for her members. Southern spirit always runs high and these Southern gentlemen revive the spirit each time they have a party. Included on the social calendar are the French Pigalle party, the Convivium Ball to honor the birthday of their spiritual founder, Robert E. Lee, the Kappa Alpha Rose Ball, and the annual spring formal. In addition, the KAs joined the Kappas in Campus Capers competition and were among the seven skits selected for presentation. Each summer the fraternity puts on an extensive rushing program and its rush parties are numbered among the biggest and best in the state.

INTERESTING things pop up at the Pigalle Party and these two pair are no exception. Actually, its all for laughs when the KAs transform their house into a Par's nightclub.

xi chapter of KAPPA SIGMA

Xi chapter of Kappa Sigma, the oldest active fraternity on the University campus, started another top year under the leadership of President Bob Fussell. Fussell was administration editor of the Razorback, president of the Business junior class, an associate justice of the Student Court, and was tapped by Blue Key. John Stroud served as president of Blue Key. Garnier Puryear and John Cooper were members of the cheer-leading squad. Serving in publications were Don McKnight, business manager of the Traveler; Mike Thompson, business manager elect of the Traveler; Phil Anderson, editor of the Law Review; and Dick Craiglow, circulation manager of the Traveler. Joe Pillow was elected to the presidency of IFC and Billy Tranum was elected president of Wilson Sharp. Bill Byrd was co-chairman of Campus Capers as well as organization editor of the Razorback and vice president of Civic Club. Xi was represented in sports by football players Billy Tranum, George McLeod, Red Barnett, and Mickey Cissell. Socially, Kappa Sigma had their annual Christmas formal, Valentine party, Horror party, Stardust Ball, and many informal house parties and open houses. The KZs joined Holcombe Hall to finish second in Campus Capers competition.

Gamma Chi Zeta of Lambda Chi Alpha experienced another fine year of activity and leadership at the University. Arkansas Lambda Chi's served as host to the Southwest Area Conclave, which is made up of thirteen chapters located in the Southwestern part of the United States. On the hill, Scotty Scholl was editor of the Traveler, a member of Blue Key, chairman of the Board of Publications, and chosen for Who's Who. Don Morehart was also very active in publications as he worked as business manager of the Razorback. Stan Martin was a member of the Student Union Central Planning Committee and the Student Union Board. Mac McDonald was elected vice president of the Interfraternity Council and Bruce Huddleston served IFPC as treasurer. Lambda Chi was represented on the gridiron by quarterback James Monroe and tackle Eddie Walker. Monroe was tapped by Blue Key and also named to the All-Southwest Scholastic team. Don Morehart was tapped by Blue Key and he and Monroe joined old members David Burrough and Scotty Scholl in Blue Key. The biggest event of the social season is the Black and White formal where the Crescent Girl is named. Also, the Lambda Chi's enjoy their Goofball and Alphatraz parties and the Christmas formal.

PINNING serenade at the Zeta house brings out all of the brothers and housemother, Mrs. Blanch Snow, in the cold weather as the fraternity joins together in song to say congratulations.

arkansas alpha chapter of PHI DELTA THETA

This fall was the year that Phi Delts at Arkansas have been waiting for since their arrival on campus in 1948. For the first time since they had come to Arkansas, the Phi Delts had their house. Although they moved in last spring, this is the first year that the chapter had been able to start off in the house that had been planned for so long. It was a good year too, as the Phi Delts walked off with first place in Singfony. On the campus, Bob Dudley supervised the summer rush program as IFC rush chairman. Benny Rice was sports editor of the Razorback and John Greer was military editor of the Razorback. Greer was also pep rally chairman and vice president of the Marketing Club. Lewis Sharp was president of the Marketing Club and Rice was president of the Press Club. Henry Hawkins was in the student senate. Lou Hobson and C. B. Newton were on the varsity baseball team. Jim Minnier was campus editor of the Traveler. Monte Hopper was president of Alpha Phi Omega and Dick Bennett was treasurer of Tau Beta Pi. Socially, the Phi Delts enjoyed the She Delta Theta party, a Founder's Day trip to Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs and a banquet at the Little Rock Club, "Heaven and Hell" party, and the spring formal and outing.

ACCEPTING for the group which he had so ably just directed to first place in Singfony is Bill Taylor. The Phi Delts sang "Deep River" and "Hallelujah Amen" on their way to the trophy.

alpha zeta chapter of PI KAPPA ALPHA

Pi Kappa Alpha contributes many campus leaders each year. Notable among its leaders were Joe Ford who was president of Alpha Kappa Psi, vice president of IFC, tapped for Blue Key and chosen for Who's Who; Bob Dawson who was editor of the A Book, associate editor of the Razorback, tapped by Blue Key and elected editor of the 1960 Razorback; Dale Green who was director of Gaebale, chairman of Singfony, tapped by Blue Key and chief of the PIO; Gerald Bowen who was business manager of the Guild Ticker, served in the student senate and tapped by ODK; Bill Sherman who served in the senate and was tapped by ODK; Charles Wilson who was vice president of Alpha Kappa Psi and president of Arnold Air Society; Bill Poe who was assistant editor of the Razorback. PiKA was represented in sports by football captain Bill Michael, freshmen football stars Lance Alworth and Bruce Fullerton, and basketball player Ora Lee Boss. Jerry Nall was named Campus Lover in the Campus Chest Charity Drive. Socially, the Pikes had their annual Quo Vadis Party which is a Roman style party that is not soon forgotten, the annual Dream Girl Formal, the Christmas brunch, spring outing, open houses on Dad's Day and after each football game, and several house parties and outings.

LINING UP for breakfast at the annual Christmas Brunch held on the Sunday before the holidays begin are PiKAs and dates who have just returned to the house from church.

alpha upsilon chapter of SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

Alpha Upsilon has steadily grown to new heights as it brings new activities and honors to add to its already high prestige. In activities, SAE has excelled with Pat Fleming, vice president of the student body; Mack Moore, Jim Hefley, Jim Tompkins and Pat Fleming serving on the student senate; Jim Tompkins, president of the senior class and the ASGA; John Gossett, treasurer of IFC; Jerry Franks, president of the IFPC; Chad Kumpe, president of the Business freshman class; Jim Hefley, co-editor of the Arkansas Engineer; Ed Dozier, associate editor and editor-elect of the Traveler; Jim Van Dover, vice president of Wilson Sharp; B.

LAST MINUTE details are being worked out in the wee small hours of the morning by SAE pledges, but it was all worth it as the stork made alot of Alphs happy with first place award.

omega omega chapter of SIGMA CHI

Sigma Chi at the University of Arkansas is well known for its combination of activities, leadership and athletics. This combination has produced Taylor Prewitt who was president of ODK, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and chosen for Who's Who; Kent Shreeve who was president of the Engineering Council, Cadet Colonel of the Air Force ROTC and chosen for Who's Who; Dickey Ray Trammel who was president of the Business College and of ABC; Larry Moeller who was Cadet Colonel of the Army ROTC; Tommy Schallhorn who was president of Alpha Kappa Psi; John Moore who was co-editor of the Arkansas Engineer; David Carpenter who was news editor of the Traveler; and Phil Keese who was a cheerleader. Jere Johnson and Jim Sadler joined Taylor Prewitt and Kent Shreeve as members of ODK. Alan Sugg and Jim Gadberry joined Dickey Ray Trammel in Blue Key. Sigma Chi took their second consecutive Homecoming trophy in the house decoration competition and placed second in the float competition. Parties included the Kiddie Party, Christmas formal, Gold Rush, the Sweetheart formal and many open houses. Representing the fraternity in athletics were Freddy Akers, Bill Luplow, Billy Kyser, Alan Sugg, Tommy Rankin, Bill May, George Edwards, Bo Huffman, Jerry Moore, Tommy Polk, Stuart Towns, and Tommy Fowler. The fraternity basketball team reached the intramural finals.

SPRING house cleaning day rolled around at the Sigma Chi house and Beryl Anthony and Dickie Lankford manned the brooms as Bill Taylor chopped away with the clippers.

gamma upsilon chapter of SIGMA NU

As it continues to grow and expand, Sigma Nu encompassed more honors and activities again this year. In publications, Bill Barksdale was editor of the Agriculturist, Buddy McWilliams was editor of the Guild Ticker, Jim Manville was co-editor of the Student Directory, Jim Tuohey was editor of the Razorback and Dick Blake was business manager of the Engineer. On the hill, Benny Hays was president of the Civic Club; Bob Middleton was vice president of ODK; Bill Adair was a cheerleader; Hugh Kincaid was chief justice of the student court; and Gene Rackley was vice president of the IFPC. Bob Middleton, Dick Blake, Jim Manville, Benny Hays and Don Mehlburger were chosen for Who's Who. Jim Tuohey and Ed Ragsdale were tapped by ODK. Blue Key tapped Charles Hughes, Jay Carpenter and Lynn Campbell. In sports, Jim Mooty was named to the All-Southwest football team and Jay Carpenter was co-captain of the basketball team. John Boles was on the varsity football team. In intramurals, fraternity teams won football, basketball, volleyball, softball and golf. The fraternity placed second in Homecoming house competition and third in the float judging. Also, Sigma Nu joined the Pi Phi's for Campus Capers and their skit was picked for third place.

BUSES were plastered with signs as the members of Sigma Nu and their dates prepared for a weekend trip to the Ole Miss game in Little Rock, and a party after the game in Hot Springs.

arkansas alpha chapter of SIGMA PHI EPSILON

Anxiously awaiting completion of plans for a new house, the men living behind the red door at 753 W. Dickson were laying plans for future expansion. The architect's drawing of the new house is pictured on this page and it will be located south of the SAE house on fraternity row. The Sig Eps were active in campus activities and intramurals. In varsity sports they were represented by track man James Taylor. Basketball was the highlight of the intramural program as their favored team moved through the season undefeated only to be upset in the fraternity playoffs. Talent was abundant in the SPE house as Bob Flowers won the Student Union talent show for the second straight year and represented the University at the Southwest Talent Show at Texas A&M. Jerre Van Hoose was active in the National Collegiate Players and held the lead in several University Theatre plays including "Macbeth". Anyone listening to the radio in Fayetteville could hear the familiar voice of SPE Guy Brown who was a Disc Jockey. Socially, the Sig Eps passed through the red door dressed for the Golden Heart formal, spring outing, Moonshiner's Ball, April Fool's Masquerade party, and many informal open houses after the football games and on weekends.

BASKETBALL was the big intramural sport for SPE as they showed superior strength during the season only to have several of their key players injured in a wreck and be upset in playoffs.

alpha sigma chapter of SIGMA PI

Sigma Pi was established on the University of Arkansas campus in 1948 and as such is one of the youngest fraternities on the campus. Like the other new fraternities, Sigma Pi is working for the future and it is only a matter of time when they too will begin construction of the new house which they have planned. In activities, Ray Waters tossed his hat into the political ring this spring when he announced that he would seek the post of treasurer of the student body. Bob McDougal served as secretary of the Interfraternity Council. Tom Glaze represented Sigma Pi in athletics on the varsity baseball team. Lee Fletcher was seen often in his green stripped coat as he campaigned for St. Patrick representing the AIIE. Socially, Sigma Pi held its annual White and Gold Ball and the Orchid formal. On a lighter note were the Beat Generation Valentine party, the annual outing, Founder's Day banquet, weekend house parties, drop-ins, exchange dinners, and listening parties for the out of town football games. The Sigma Pi house decoration received much notice and comment during Homecoming especially when it did not place because many observers considered it to be one of the top decorations of the day.

WATCHING TV is a favorite pastime of the Sigma Pi's. A big crowd of members and dates were found on Saturday afternoon when the Razorbacks were featured on the game of the week.

COKE break at the Theta Tau house is likely to come at any time of the day or night as these engineering students spend long hard hours with the slide rules and books.

upsilon chapter of THETA TAU

Theta Tau is a professional engineering fraternity which strives to maintain a high standard of professional interest among its members as well as unite them in fraternal friendship. Leading among the members of Theta Tau on the campus were Dick Blake, Kent Shreeve and Jim Manville who were named to Who's Who; Thomas Ross and Jere Johnson who were tapped by ODK; Jim Hefley and Jay Carpenter who were tapped by Blue Key; Charles Yates, Jim Sadler, Kent Shreeve, and Donald Dallas who were named to Tau Beta Pi; Kent Shreeve who was president of the Engineering Council; Charles Yates who was elected Saint Patrick; Jim Hefley and John Moore who were co-editors of the Arkansas Engineer; Bob Wilson who is editor elect of the Engineer; Jim Hefley and Bob Reynolds who were members of the student senate; Jay Carpenter who was captain of the basketball team and Joe Crumpler who was on the golf team; Lewis Barnard and Nick Weedman who were co-chairmen of the Air Force Ball. During the fall semester, Theta Tau had their annual Founder's Day banquet and in the spring the members hosted the Saint Patricia candidates at a banquet. Spring time also found the members on their annual outing.

CARDS are a popular pastime for engineers but Theta Tau Jim Sadler has reached the point of indecision because he doesn't know whether Hap Hazzard is bluffing on that last raise or not.

HOLCOMBE, SCOTT and WASHINGTON

Under the Panhellenic rules of the University of Arkansas, freshmen women are not allowed to participate in rush. As a result, all freshmen women at the University live either in Holcombe Hall, Washington Hall or Scott House. The freshmen won many honors this year as Luellen Jones of Washington was named the Honorary Cadet Colonel of the Air Force ROTC. Betsy Garner of Holcombe was named an Honorary Lt. Colonel of the Army ROTC. Barbara Barnes of Holcombe was chosen a Razorback beauty. Holcombe won second place trophies for their Homecoming float and house decorations. Betty Hemphill of Scott was named the Acacia Queen of Hearts. Kaycille Woodruff of Washington was chosen Lambda Chi Alpha Crescent Girl for next year. Sandra Dean and Anne Robins of Holcombe won seats in the Commerce Guild when they were elected in BA freshmen elections. Kappa Sigma and Holcombe teamed up in Campus Capers and each took a second place trophy back to their houses for their efforts. This is the last year that the freshmen women will be housed in separate quarters at the University since construction of the new Fulbright dormitory will be finished by the opening of the fall '59 term. Gone will be the morning bus ride to and from downtown Washington and the walk from Scott over to Holcombe for meals. Holcombe was the scene of an attempted panty raid this fall after the pep rally at President Caldwell's house. Nothing came of the affair except a campus for the residents of Holcombe for their participation and some harsh words to the boys who were thought to have engineered the raid.

The residents of Carnall experienced one of their top years in campus participation this year. Sally Featherston was one of the top women on the campus because she was president of the Women's Interhall Council, chairman of the AWS judicial board, and chosen for Who's Who. Martha Callahan was tapped by Phi Beta Kappa and Mortar Board tapped Sally Featherston. Maureen Vincent was named a Razorback beauty, was one of the six finalists in the Saint Patricia contest, and held leading roles in many of the University Theatre plays. Marlene Hillin was head majorette of the Marching Razorback Band and was also Alpha Gamma Rho Sweetheart. Joy Sanders led the women of Carnall to a second place finish in Singfony. In intramurals, the hall won first place in ping pong singles and second place in ping pong doubles. Socially, a sock hop was held each semester; everyone enjoyed the annual Christmas Dinner-Dance; there was a stag party before the AWS Vice-Versa dance; and to top everything off, the annual spring formal was a big success. This is the last year that upper class women will be housed in Carnall because plans are being made to move all these facilities to Holcombe next year when the freshmen move to the new Fulbright dormitory.

SECOND PLACE trophy was presented to the girls from Carnall as Joy Sanders directed them to victory with the singing of "A Snow Legend" and "In the Still of the Night".

FITZGERALD DAVIS, and UNIVERSITY

Davis Hall had one big objective in mind as the year begun and that was to retire the intramural sweepstakes trophy which they had won for the past two years. They made good progress by taking first place in volleyball, second place in ping pong and third place in bowling. In activities, Annette Lendal was chosen as the Rotary Exchange Student of the Month; Lucinda Greig was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship for study in New Zealand; Frankie Lynn Baker was chosen as an Honorary Lt. Colonel of the Air Force ROTC; Sue Hatchett was president of WRA; Carol Parker was a sophomore secretary; Hazel Holzhauer was a Traveler staff writer and editor of the Co-Eds Code; Alice Feath-erston, Jane Goodwin and Louise Pistole served as senior counselors. Socially, the residents of Davis and University enjoyed a sock hop, the annual Christmas Dinner-Dance, a Christmas decorating party, a tea honoring their new housemother — Mrs. Louise Van Hoose, a Christmas party for underprivileged children, a senior breakfast, the spring formal and a spring outing. For the first time this year Fitzgerald housed freshmen women because of the crowded conditions in the other dorms. However, Fitzgerald was torn down second semester to make way for the Zeta addition and the residents moved into Holcombe.

DANCING at the Christmas Dinner-Dance is Julia McCartney and her date. The annual affair is quite an event at Davis and the dance is preceded by a formal dinner for residents and dates.

OFF-CAMPUS WOMEN

Starting the year with the largest number of girls since the founding of OCW, Nona Brooks capably led the group as it expanded their program of campus participation. Not only did the group enter a float in the annual Homecoming parade as it has in the past, but OCW also had an entry in the house decoration contest. Their entry was located near the tennis court on the corner of Maple and Garland Streets. The girls spent a lot of time planning and working on their house decoration and were quite justably proud of the results. Carol Cole was elected to the Commerce Guild and was very active in Business School activities. Socially, the big Valentine party was held this year in the Student Union Blue Room and was acclaimed as one of the best OCW parties ever. Also, the group had an afternoon get-together at Nancy Allen's house and several other informal social hours in the Student Union. OCW is affiliated with the Women's Interhall Council and has a seat at its meetings. This is the second year that the group has gone by the name of Off Campus Women. Originally, it was known as Organized Independent Women and went by this title from its founding in 1946 until the change in 1957. The purpose of the organization is to provide unaffiliated women at the University a means by which they can participate in campus activities.

4-H HOUSE

The girls at the 4-H House enjoyed one of their most successful years on the University campus. Tops in campus organizations were Carolyn Files who was named to Who's Who, served as president of Phi Upsilon Omicron, was assistant manager of the ASA, and was a member of the student senate; Doris Boykin who was elected president of Colhecon; Linda Lewis who worked as recording secretary of Phi Upsilon Omicron; Sue Kuester who was song leader of Coterie; Gennie Kelly who served as vice president of WRA and librarian of the PEM Club; Carol Barnum who was a sophomore secretary; and Shirley Barrick, Nan McConnel, Emma Jean Owen, Carolyn Files, Bea Lane and Doris Boykin who were WIHC representatives. 4-H took both spots of honor in the Agri Queen contest as Carolyn Files was named the winner and Joyce Jenkins was named Maid of Honor. Socially, the 4-H House held a sock hop in September, a Christmas Dinner-Dance, their annual Pollyanna Banquet, a costume party given by the pledges, a Valentine Dinner-Dance, a faculty tea, a spring formal and a spring outing. A pledge-ship is required of new members of 4-H House just as in the fraternity-sorority system. Formal initiation is held for the pledges and they have a sorority pin of their own which they wear with pride. The group at Arkansas is affiliated with the national organization of 4-H Houses for women on college campuses.

Serving as the governing body for the women's dormitories of the University, the WIHC is composed of representatives from each of these dorms. Included in WIHC jurisdiction are Carnall, 4-H, Davis, University, Fitzgerald, Holcombe, Washington and Scott. One big project of the WIHC is to sponsor social activities for the halls which it serves. The biggest undertaking of the council socially is to sponsor the annual Harvest Moon Ball, a fall formal held each year in the Student Union Ballroom. The Council also legislates on disciplinary infractions by the dorms.

Undertaking the responsibility of sponsoring the Miss MIHC contest, the MIHC Day sweepstakes, and a fall and spring formal are only a part of the duties of the Men's Interhall Council. This group is the governing body for all activities of the men's dormitories and is also responsible for the financial affairs of the dorms. The group holds regular meetings and discusses any problems or difficulties which a dorm might be having. In addition, the Council also goes over ways and methods of improving unity and friendship among the dorms.

Interpreting and upholding the constitution of the Men's Interhall Council is the chief responsibility of the Men's Interhall Court. The court is actually the judiciary division of the MIHC and it is composed of one representative from each of the participating houses. Handling disciplinary problems recommended to it by the MIHC is the chief function of the court although it has the power to take independent action on its own. All students accused of committing an infraction are brought to trial before the court and sentenced or excused depending on the outcome of the trial.

RAZORBACK HALL

Offering a friendly atmosphere with comfortable surroundings, Razorback Hall is a good place for men to get acquainted with college during their freshman year. Participation is the most important thing to the members of Razorback as they stress that each student do his part so that a feeling of unity and friendship will be created. Razorback sponsored a full intramural program and brought back some trophies in the process. David Wellhansen won the singles of tennis and he teamed with John Fletcher to take the doubles title. Sam Johnson and Dickie Finley teamed together to win the badminton doubles championship. Participation in campus activities was also very high with head freshman counselor David Sain leading the way. Armil Snow became one of the few freshmen to ever attain the position of Traveler News Editor in their first year. He took over the job after David Carpenter dropped out of school and was quite an asset to the staff. David Lubin held the important position of being social chairman of the Men's Interhall Council. On his back fell the load of making arrangements for all organized parties. Bob Hickman was secretary for the Men's Interhall Court and was required to be on hand at each session. Socially, the residents of the hall enjoyed an open house after the Dad's Day and Homecoming football games, a faculty tea, exchange dinners with the women's dorms, a spring outing and formal.

SEDGEWELL HOUSE

Residents of Sedgewell House are freshmen and find the facilities of the house excellent for their adjustment to college life. Socially, the residents sponsored a very successful Thanksgiving dance and have also had many informal stag parties. In activities, Dan Byars has written several articles for the Traveler in which he reviews campus plays and concerts. Sexton Orms ran the mile on the freshman track team. Counselor Billy Rye was company commander of Co. B in the Army ROTC. The men of Sedgewell constantly rank high in scholarship, always ranking high above the over-all men's average.

Participation is stressed and a full intramural program is provided for the residents. Sedgewell is the north half of the former Gregson Hall, but the building was divided to facilitate self-government and organization within the dorm. The building was named for William Sedgewell "Pop" Gregson, former University chaplain. Sedgewell has representatives on the Men's Interhall Council and it is also represented in many of the campus organizations such as ABC, Civic Club, Circle K, Psi Chi, Arnold Air Society and others.

COMBING his hair for a big date is Dan Byars who gets professional advice from his buddy Franklin McGary with whom he is going to double.

WILLIAM HOUSE

Providing a residence for upperclass men, William House became more than just a place to live this year. Participation in campus activities was high and Mike Allen led the way. He was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and was selected to Who's Who. Joe Buffalo was tapped by Blue Key and the law student was also chosen for Who's Who. Charles Vines was a company commander in the Army ROTC program and Tom B. Wilson, former Pershing Rifle PIO, was promoted to Pershing Rifle Lieutenant. On the lighter side, the residents of William House sponsored a Christmas party for a group of underprivileged children. One of the highlights of the year for residents was the completion of the Brough Commons, new men's cafeteria. The food and service for these upperclassmen improved as did their appetites. Intramural participation was very high and William posed a threat in each sport which it entered. The grade point of the house was way above the all-men's average. William is the south wing of the old Gregson Hall and it too was named for William Sedgewell "Pop" Gregson, former University chaplain. William has the reputation of producing many campus leaders, such as James Connaway, president of the student body, who is a former president of William House.

WILSON SHARP HOUSE

Wilson Sharp House provides housing facilities for those members of the University athletic teams. Located on the high hill above the Barnhill Fieldhouse, it is only a short walk to the practice fields and courts for residents. Those participating in activities other than their sport are Richard Bell, Jim Van Dover, James Monroe and Jay Carpenter who were tapped by Blue Key; Ray Dyke and Joe Nosari who were tapped by Omicron Delta Kappa; Richard Bell, Jim Van Dover, Jon Dermott, and Bill Trantum who were members of the Civic Club; Van Dover and Bell who were chosen for Who's Who; Jon Dermott who was the reigning Campus Lover; Jim Van Dover who was Brigade Executive Officer in the Army ROTC program; Richard Bell who was president of the PEM club. In athletics,

Jim Mooty was named to the first team All-Southwest football team and Clyde Rhoden was named to the second team All-Southwest basketball team. Billy Gilbow and James Monroe were named to the first team All-Southwest scholastic football team. Socially, social chairmen Jim Gaston and Jon Dermott arranged for an open house honoring their new housemother — Mrs. Earl Bird, a Christmas formal and party, many weekend parties and dances and the football banquet. Paul Henderson represented the dorm in the campus bridge tournament. Wilson Sharp surprised the whole campus when the residents upset Kappa Kappa Gamma in a hula hoop contest. Also, each sorority had a special dinner and party in honor of the football team.

VICTORY in a hula hoop contest with the members of Kappa Kappa Gamma, Wilson Sharp's Terry Arenz and Earl Bond read official challenge and boast a bit about how they can swing it.

BUCHANAN HOUSE

Residents of Buchanan House have had a full year, highlighted by participation in intramural sports competition. The men of Buchanan won the sweepstakes trophy in intramural competition for the second consecutive year. In varsity sports, Jewell Self lettered as a member of the Razorback basketball team and Randy Spencer was a member of the varsity tennis team. A busy social schedule was filled out by the MIHC Christmas Dance, the MIHC spring dance, and many informal gatherings. Buchanan took an active part in campus organizations being represented in such groups as Tau Beta Pi, Phi Mu Epsilon, Alpha Zeta, Alpha Tau Alpha, ABC, MIHC, SAM, the various engineering fraternities and campus service groups. In addition to participation in campus affairs, Buchanan House residents endeavored to maintain a high scholastic standing and their house placed very high in the house rankings for grade point average. Buchanan is the last section of the two modern dorms recently constructed to provide housing facilities for upperclassmen. The other half of the building is Droke House, but the two are separated by a partition in the middle.

GLADSON HOUSE

Winning the intramural football championship was the biggest victory for Gladson House this year. The championship team was unbeaten, untied and unscored upon in all competition. The basketball team did almost as well as it was beaten out by the Baptist Student Union in the intramural cage finals. Participating in activities were Kenneth Hendrickson who was chief justice of the Men's Interhall Court and a Pershing Rifle platoon leader; Dale Green who was the MIHC senate representative; Jack Thetford who was secretary of the Engineering Council. Socially, Gladson participated in all of the MIHC functions but also had an outing of their own at Monte Ne near Rogers, Arkansas. It was a big day for residents and dates as all of the resort facilities were made available to the group. Gladson House is the southern portion of the first of the two independent upperclass men's dormitories. Eating facilities are not in the house as all meals are eaten at the new Brough Commons. Scholastically, Gladson has yet to win the top grade average award, but its members cumulative is well above the all-men's average.

DROKE HOUSE

Occupying the north half of the southern dorm, Droke House produced several top leaders on campus this year. Eddie Joe McRell was president of the Men's Interhall Council, vice president of the Blackfriars, a member of numerous committees, tapped by Omicron Delta Kappa, and selected for Who's Who. Reed Greenwood was secretary of Phi Eta Sigma, national honorary fraternity for scholastic achievement. Charles Poe was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and worked actively in that organization. In addition, the residents of Droke participated fully in the many activities and campus organizations. Maintaining a high grade average is most important to the men of Droke and their cumulative average is among the top ones each semester. Although not claiming any championships, Droke participated fully in the independent men's intramural program and their teams were quite good competitors. Participation in MIHC activities was the biggest thing for the house and its residents took full advantage of the MIHC social program.

Ripley residents are very proud of the fact that they have now won the Robert M. Jones Scholarship Plaque for three consecutive semesters. Their cumulative grade point was highest for all men's residences on the campus. Ripley also produced some outstanding leaders in the person of Joe Kunkel who was treasurer of the Civic Club, Saint Patrick of 1958, president of the ASCE, a member of the student senate, and chosen for Who's Who; Max Sutton who was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and served as chairman of the counselor committee; John Sallis who maintained a 4.0 average and was a Phi Beta Kappa; Donald Dallas who was a member of Tau Beta Pi and Theta Tau; and David Bostian who was a member of Beta Alpha Psi. Socially, the house participated in the MIHC activities and had a fall outing at Monte Ne. Intramural competition was stressed and the house was well represented by its football and basketball teams. Ripley is the northern wing of the first of the two men's dorms and is perhaps the most desirable residence since it is the closest to Brough Commons and the campus classroom buildings.

JOHN BARNHILL came in contact with the athletic program in 1946 and the progress made during his tenure as coach, director is a tribute to ability and dedication.

directors of razorback athletic fortunes

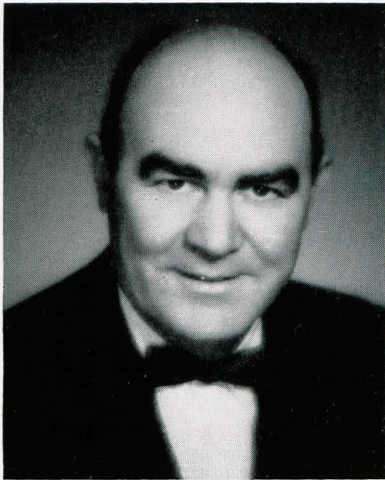

GLEN ROSE entered his sixteenth year as Arkansas basketball coach and his first win of the season was a coaching milestone — win #300. He is dean of the Southwest coaches.

GEORGE COLE completed his twenty-fifth year with the athletic program and his second year as assistant athletic director. He heads recruiting.

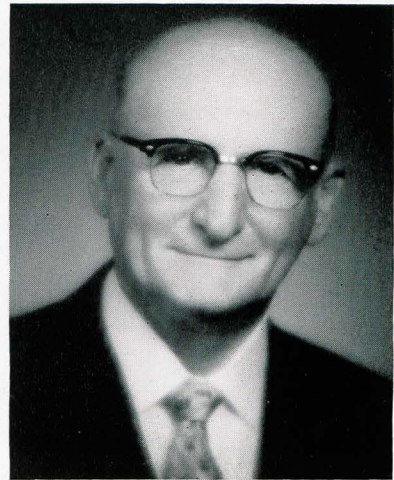

FRANK BROYLES was well received as he entered and ended his first year at Porker grid helm. Keen of mind, he holds respect of profession.

all's well that ends well

Frank Broyles came to Arkansas with visions of fleet backs scoring from everywhere. After three games he faced the reality that a graduated line corps had depleted his front ranks and that a revamped offense was necessary. Much work was involved and most of the mid-year rebuilding burden fell on Hog linemen. It was their dogged determination that stopped an Arkansas losing streak at six games, almost five. Appropriately, 180-pound guard Bill Gilbow earned the Crip Hall Homecoming award. Arkansas tripped Texas A&M 21-8, walloped Hardin-Simmons 60-15, upset SMU 13-6, and edged T-Tech 14-8 to finish at 4-6 and with a conference mark of 2-4, identical to the 1957 record. Halfback Jim Mooty played a rags to riches role as he rose from an Arkansas fourth team position to all-conference. Mooty and Billy Kyser sped for unprecedented 100-yard kickoff returns against Hardin-Simmons on "George Cole Day." These runs broke Wear Schoonover's 1929 school scoring record. Donnie Stone gained bids to the East-West game and Senior Bowl. Tackle Bill Michael played for the Southwest All-Stars under the direction of Broyles and helped dump the Nationals, 22-13. The first unit, excepting many first-year coaching experiments, usually read: Bill Trnum, LE; Michael, LT; Gilbow, LG; Wayne Harris, C; Bill Luplow, RG; Marlin Epp, RT; Richard Bell, RE; James Monroe or Mike Cooney, QB; Mooty, LH; Stone, FB; and Don Ritschel or Don Horton, RH.

Parallel with the upward surge of the Razorbacks was the emergence of halfback Jim Mooty as an all-conference selection. Mooty began the season as a starter, but dropped from the squad for personal reasons after the Tulsa game. He returned to the squad after missing one contest and was demoted to a fourth team position. Returning to the lineup against Texas, Mooty was the "flyback" in the revamped Arkansas offense and was unstoppable on the ground in the contests that followed. The El Dorado junior consistently flashed into the opposition's secondary and was equally tough on defense. His perseverance under fire won the respect of fans and players.

MOOTY breaks into the open against Ole Miss and blockers Alberty (45), Dudley (31), Horton (43), Bell (87), Stone (42), and Green (60) rush to his aid. Mooty turned in a sterling performance.

OPENING NIGHT for Coach Broyles and the Arkansas Razorbacks brought an emphasis on defensive ground play as the hefty Baylor Bears attempted to mass-move lighter Porker forwards.

Stone (42), Harris (55), and Boles (75) were in the thick of action much of the night, receiving a preview of opposition offensive tactics which were employed in the early games.

It was with great anticipation of a wide-open offensive show that some 36,000 fans crammed into Little Rock's War Memorial Stadium to witness the first outing of the multiple-offensive Arkansas Razorbacks. Instead of witnessing long scoring jaunts by fast backs, the fog-shrouded night ushered in the preview of what would be facing the Porkers the first half of the year. Heavier and more experienced Baylor linemen found relish in shoving Arkansas back for consistent short gains, and keeping with the temperament of the contest, both Bear scores came on short plunges. Baylor touchdowns came in the first half and second-half strategy called for keeping the Razorbacks on their heels and out of scoring position. Arkansas couldn't get its multiple offense to function properly as quarterbacks Jim Monroe and Mike Cooney received their first taste of directing it under real competitive conditions. Arkansas netted 60 yards, was held to three first downs, and came closest to scoring when reaching the Baylor 36-yard line. Halfback Jim Mooty was Arkansas' most successful ground gainer with 17 yards in three carries. Fullback Larry Hickman led Baylor with 92 yards.

Tulsa broke a 39-year Arkansas home jinx in whipping the Hogs in Razorback Stadium, as the last TU win on Arkansas soil dated back to 1919. Tulsa scored first, recovering a blocked second-quarter punt in the end-zone. The Gale scored again in the second period on a three-yard run. Arkansas made its first touchdown as Monroe threw a first play second-half pass to Bell for 82 yards. Midway in the third period, Tulsa scored on a 28-yard pass play, and in the last stanza intercepted a pass for a 44-yard TD. Monroe passed to Barnes for the second Pig score. He also hit Barnes for the PAT.

STRONGER than usual, a Tulsa Golden Hurricane swirled through Razorback Stadium with transfer Ronnie Morris (42) of Fayetteville doing much of the damage. Morris was stopped here by Jim Monroe (10). Bell (87) made University of Arkansas' first TD of the season.

Much needed confidence was gained in this sterling defensive effort as the Hogs gave pre-season pick and eventual Southwest Conference champ Texas Christian a bad case of the upset jitters. Leading until the final five minutes, it appeared as if the Razorbacks were on their way to victory, when fullback Jack Spikes broke up the middle for 39 yards to give the Frogs new life. Three plays later TCU scored the winning touchdown. TCU scored first, but Arkansas stormed back in the second period as Stone plunged over from the one. Horton converted. Stone led Hog runners with 21 yards.

Spirits reached a low point for the year in this Dad's Day contest as the Razorbacks struggled through 60 minutes of tormenting football while the Rice Owls methodically strode to three touchdowns and kicked one field goal. After the good defensive effort against TCU, the Porkers were battered and bruised and the 200-plus Rice linemen had a field day with the lighter Hog forwards. Then too, Arkansas' offensive efforts generated little yardage until the late stages and much of that came on desperation passes between the 30-yard stripes. Rice jumped into an early lead on a seven-yard field goal, and following the ensuing kickoff, a clipping penalty shoved Arkansas back to its one. Rice took the early-down punt and quickly made the short ground march, scoring on a one-yard plunge. The conversion was good, the score was 10-0, and Arkansas morale was suffering. The Porkers stopped an Owl second-quarter drive on the one, and this was one of the high points of the day. Thirty seconds before halftime Rice scored on a 36-yard pass play. Rice tallied in the final five minutes on a one-yard run. Stone led the Arkansas ground attack, with 62 yards in 11 tries.

Undefeated Texas defeated winless Arkansas as was expected, but despite the score there were moments of hope. Arkansas dominated opening play and early in the second period Gerald Gardner intercepted a Texas pass on the Texas 24. A personal foul penalty against Texas put Arkansas on the seven and in three plays Stone scored from the three for a 6-0 Arkansas lead. There was little time for pleasant reflections, though, as two minutes later Rene Ramirez bolted off tackle for 48 yards and a score. The kick was good. On the next series of downs, Arkansas fumbled on its own 31 and eight plays later Texas scored. Twenty-five seconds before halftime the Steers booted a 12-yard field goal and led 17-6. Texas passed 14 yards in the last quarter for its final score. Their third extra point attempt was good. For Arkansas, Mooty made a large step toward attaining all-conference status in his first appearance after dropping from the squad two weeks previously. The El Dorado runner averaged 7.0 yards on 11 carries. In addition, Mooty logged five unassisted tackles which was the top total for both teams. Cooney played considerable time on offense and ran the option for 54 yards.

Once again the winless Porkers met an undefeated squad, but this time the score was closer and Arkansas walked off the field with a moral victory. Ole Miss scored first on a six-yard run, but Arkansas came back on a darting 23-yard dash by Mooty. The conversion missed, leaving the Rebels ahead, 7-6. Ole Miss scored again, kicked, and held a 14-6 halftime lead. Mooty, enjoying a banner day, scored from the 10 in the second half and Arkansas elected to try for two points. Monroe sought Bill Trnum, found him covered, and a desperate pass sailed just past the fingertips of Mooty.

JOE PAUL ALBERTY filled in for injured Don Stone and provided the key plays that brought Arkansas its first victory, 21-8 over A&M. Jim Hollander (72) and John Boles (75) provide blocking as Alberty returns a kickoff 77 yards to furnish the winning impetus.

WATCHED from every angle, senior halfback Don Horton gathers in a touchdown pass against Hardin-Simmons. Porkers borrowed this play from Sammy Baugh's pro-type repertoire. Partisan Little Rock fans were very receptive to the 60-point Arkansas offensive display. For assistant athletic director George Cole, his "day" couldn't have been better.

Hardin-Simmons was supposed to put the football into orbit, but it was the old fashioned infantry attack that paced Arkansas in this record setting win. The War Memorial scoreboard failed to register after 49 points, but the third unit seemed unaware of this as they scored three last-quarter touchdowns to set the Stadium single game and team scoring records. Big moments in this game, of course, were the 100-yard kickoff returns by Mooty and Kyser. Stone opened point production with a four-yard blast and was followed by Monroe on an eight-yard run. Hardin-Simmons scored from the two, setting the stage for Mooty's touchdown run, the longest in school history. In the third quarter, Stone scored from the five. Hardin-Simmons drove for 61 yards and six points, but once again the efforts of the Cowboys went for nil as Kyser made the second century dash of the day. In the fourth quarter, Horton ran over from the one, Jarrell Williams scored from the 39 and two, and Letsinger intercepted and ran for 40 yards. Williams scored from the two with eight seconds remaining. Monroe tossed three passes for two-pointers. Stone headed Arkansas rushers with 90 yards.

Arkansas linemen hamstrung touted SMU tailback Don Meredith, and after fitting this key piece, the rest of the homecoming puzzle settled into place for a sweet Arkansas victory. Four times Meredith led his Mustang mates inside the Arkansas 25, but the unawed Razorbacks refused to wilt to the pressure. Monroe and Stone provided the Arkansas offensive punch by rolling up 99 yards between them, but the big play was a 38-yard gallop by Halfback Billy Kyser. Speeding around right end, Kyser scored six points to wipe out a late first-half Southern Methodist score by Meredith. Horton converted and the Hogs were never headed. Insurance was added seven minutes later as the Porkers again took advantage of an intercepted pass to set up their score. From the Arkansas 28, it took six plays before Monroe connected on a 17-yard pass to tall Charlie Barnes, who simply outreached the SMU defender. Meredith was harassed constantly by Barnes, Leslie Letsinger, Richard Bell, John Boles, Marlin Epp, Billy Gilbow, Jerry Green, Wayne Harris, Bill Michael, Buddy Reuter, Billy Tranum, and others. This was the end of the road for the 1958 Razorbacks, and most of the Porkers were saddened at the end of it. Victory was almost a necessity to make the Arkansas comeback complete, but during most of the contest, hard-hitting Tech play kept Hog fans on edge. Arkansas scored with 6:15 remaining in the third period when Monroe sneaked over from the one. Horton's attempt was blocked. The clincher came with 13:05 left as Stone capped a 60-yard drive on a one-yard plunge. Monroe tossed to Mooty for the two points. Tech scored on a 30-yard drive and went through the line for two points.

ENDING his college career in fitting fashion, fullback Donnie Stone rams into the middle of the Texas Tech forward wall. Stone was a halfback his soph and junior years, but shifted to full his senior year to become "Mr. Inside" for the Razorbacks.

PRIMED for action, the Razorbacks leave dressing room in search of a home court victory. Porkers provided thrills for the home fans.

BENCH receives word of advice from Coach Rose during a time out. Arkansas mentor seldom displayed emotion, even in heated contests.

sophomore sparkle spices season

"Lack of speed and defense will hurt us more than anything else," commented Glen Rose after two weeks of pre-season practice. Rose's prophesy proved too true as the defending Southwest Co-Champions found trouble hitting their stride in a below average 9-15 season. Sensational sophomore play influenced the Porkers more than any other factor. In a year of close, exciting finishes the sophs contributed to the inexperience, yet it was their shooting that kept the Razorbacks up. Senior co-captains Jay Carpenter and Harry Thompson formed the nucleus of the team, providing the rebounding and a steady influence. Guard Tommy Rankin entered the campaign labeled as "another Freddy Grim," but the junior letterman developed back trouble and saw limited duty. Sophs Clyde Rhoden, Pat Foster and Ronnie Garner began as unknowns, but before the year ended they were the talk of the conference. Rhoden, Carpenter and Foster led Hog scorers. Clyde was second-team all-SWC.

"DUDDY" WALLER served as assistant varsity and head freshman basketball coach and was invaluable in many ways. Here he assists guard Tommy Rankin after a flurry of fast action on the court.

Arkansas opened away from home against Missouri, and the Porkers gave a spirited but losing performance against the Tigers. The score was 36-38 at halftime and was knotted 61-61 at the end of regulation time. But Mizzou waltzed away with a 74-71 overtime victory. In this game, Rose set the early pattern of playing his sophomores and juniors with deliberate frequency. Rhoden, Thompson, Carpenter, Rankin and Foster started, but Ora Lee Boss, Ronnie Garner, Zane Hankins, Brice Sneed and LaVerne Grindle saw considerable action. Rose soon decided to discard his favored man-for-man defense for a zone — more suited to his material. Player experiments continued through pre-conference games in an effort to add rebounding strength and develop other specialties. Rose finally settled on a sextet of Carpenter, Thompson, Rhoden, Foster, Garner and Rankin to log most of the playing time. The Big Red of Oklahoma gave Arkansas its first home opposition and consequently its first victory. The Porkers fashioned a 30-26 halftime lead and maintained the pace for a 61-52 triumph before 4,500 cheering fans. Carpenter gunned in 24 points and was followed by Foster with 15.

Arkansas opened a two-game road trip against Louisiana State in Shreveport and the short, speedy Tigers raced to a 67-58 win. Arkansas held a 28-26 halftime margin, but couldn't keep up with LSU's fast break, which brought a 41-point second-half splurge. Foster netted 14 points and was followed by Carpenter with 12. The Porkers hit the win column against Ole Miss, primarily because of 20-plus performances by Rhoden and Carpenter. The Porks led 41-39 at half, but Mississippi rallied for a 75-75 tie at the end of the game. Rhoden and Carpenter played tremendously in the clutch spots and scored all the overtime points in the 83-81 triumph. Clyde totaled a season high of 29 and Jay had 22. The Phillips "66'ers" impressed Arkansas players and fans with a 62-54 win on the Fayetteville court. The semi-pro perennials headed Arkansas 35-27 at halftime and played slow, deliberate second-half basketball against the Razorback zone. Rhoden scored 18, while Carpenter and Foster both tallied 11. Arkansas played the Tulsa Hurricane on the last day before Christmas vacation and the Gale found relish in gaining a 54-52 victory. The game was close throughout with Tulsa tenaciously holding a 31-30 halftime lead. Arkansas' main difficulty was at the free-throw line where the Porks hit only eight of 17 charity shots. Carpenter paced Razorback scorers with nine points and was followed by guards Rankin and Foster with eight each, and Garner with seven.

Arkansas entered the Southwest Conference Holiday Tournament with dark-horse chances and played its first tourney game against Southern Methodist, co-title holder of the previous year. Bobby James paced his Pony mates to a narrow 65-64 win although Arkansas owned a 35-32 halftime lead. The Porker trio of Rhoden, Carpenter, and Foster scored consistently, but in a vain effort. Rhoden tallied 23, Carpenter netted 18, and Foster had 16 as the Porkers were shoved into the losers' bracket. Arkansas fared better in its second game of the Houston tournament. The Porkers jumped to a 35-31 halftime margin over Baylor and never relinquished their lead. Rose substituted freely in an effort to find the best combination for conference use. The entire 12-man squad made the scoring column against Baylor. Rhoden with 13, Garner with 11, and Foster with 10 paced the 60-57 Arkansas win. Arkansas ended tourney play with a 72-62 loss to Texas Tech, who proved to be the biggest nemesis Arkansas faced all year. The Red Raiders were the only team to defeat Arkansas by 10 points — and they did it twice. Arkansas led 35-32 at halftime with Carpenter the leading scorer at 10.

Regional television favored Arkansas over Texas Tech as the Porkers sought revenge over their tournament tormentors. Carpenter scored 15 points, Rhoden had 13 and Thompson had 11 in this first conference game. On a one-game trip into Texas, Arkansas suffered a fatal first half against strong Texas Christian. The Froggies shot to a 27-20 halftime lead and coasted to a 52-45 decision. Arkansas defenses centered on H. E. Kirchner and limited the big boy to five points, but outside shooters countered effectively. Rhoden paced Arkansas with 12 while Foster scored 11. Arkansas returned to Fayetteville and 5,000 fans crowded Barnhill Fieldhouse for the battle with Rice. Arkansas came out strong and finished even stronger for its largest victory margin of the season. Halftime score was 34-30 and after 40 minutes the suspended scoreboard read 72-61. Rhoden sank 21 points to lead the Hog cause. Carpenter had 15 and Garner hooked for 13. Texas A&M took another one-point decision from Arkansas and the Hogs stood at the .500 mark for the last time. The Aggies edged Arkansas 63-62 on a late rally that erased an Arkansas lead that stood most of the game. Halftime score was 40-32, Arkansas. Rhoden scored 20, Rankin scored 15, and Carpenter tallied 11 points.

WHISTLING while he works, Foster (12) maintains sole possession of the ball as Rice players concentrate on making a steal. Peering over their outstretched hands is forward Harry Thompson.

ALERT for an infraction, the ref eyes the basketball, Foster, and a Mustang suspended in mid-air.

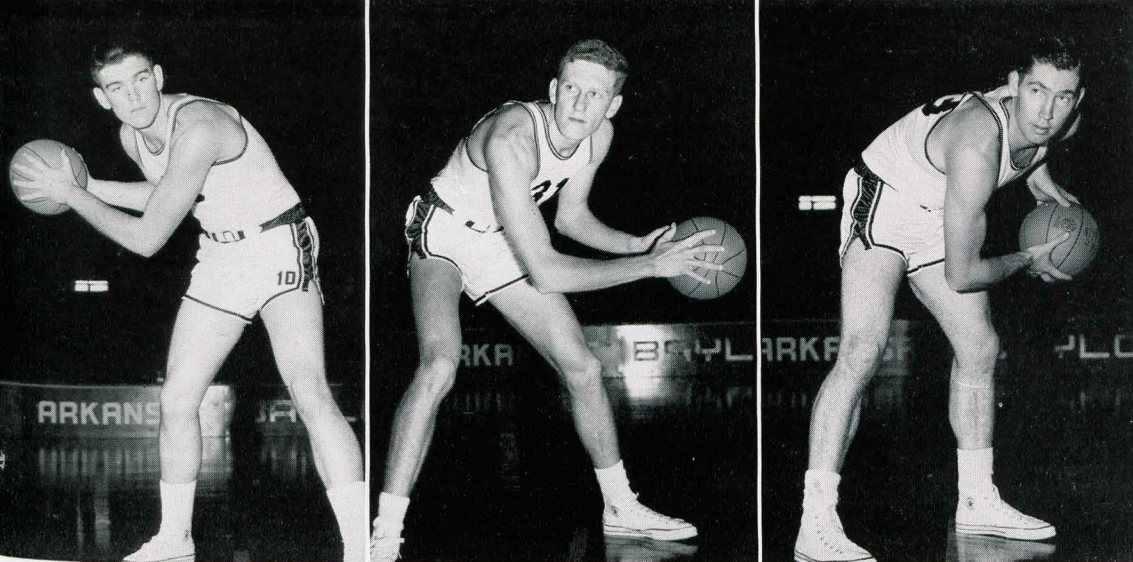

After semester break Arkansas played non-conference Tulsa as a warm-up for a continuance of loop wars. The Tulsa contest was more than a breather, however, as the Gale continued its mastery over the Hogs, 61-54. Tulsa led at half-time, 29-25. Rhoden was the only Porker in double figures with 15. Returning to conference play against Baylor, the Razorbacks hit more than 40 percent of their shots, but the Bears were equally warm. Baylor led at intermission 30-27 and stayed ahead for a 64-58 decision. Thompson led Arkansas with 17 and Rhoden followed with 15. Southern Methodist made the long Ozark trip next, and the game that followed was another case of the close one that got away. Arkansas shot to an early lead, but SMU eked out a 26-22 halftime lead. Arkansas rallied to tie the game in the second half, but a cold spell gave the Ponies enough breathing room to score a 59-50 victory. Carpenter tallied 12 and Thompson had 10 to lead Arkansas. The Hogs returned to TV and thrashed Texas in overtime, 77-74. Rhoden and Garner were sensational in a second-half come-back. Rhoden drove for 29 points while Garner hooked in 21. Halftime score was 35-33, Texas.

GIANT Longhorn center reaches over the head of 6-6 Jay Carpenter to bat away a rebound. The taller Texans encountered more than they had expected from the shorter Hog rebounders and dropped the Fayetteville finale, 63-56.

LEAP FROG is not the game but "Frenchy" seems to think so as he straddles Rhoden under basket.

Hot-shooting Rice stymied Arkansas in Houston as the Owls hit 50 percent of their field attempts. Dale Ball drove for 29 Rice points and was the big thorn in Arkansas attempts. Halftime score was Rice 34-Arkansas 32. Thompson scored 18 and Carpenter hit 13 for Arkansas. Texas Christian grabbed another close decision from the Porkers, by 76-71. Foster, Garner, and Rhoden led the Arkansas offense with 20, 19, and 14 points respectively as Frog outside shooters again gave the Arkansas defense trouble. Arkansas bounced back against Baylor, 59-53. Carpenter led Arkansas with 17 points and 15 rebounds. Rhoden and Garner followed with 12 and 10 points. Baylor led in shooting percentages, 43 to 33, but the Hogs held an important rebound edge, 56-40. Arkansas' three soph sensations took charge against A&M in College Station and the result was a hardearned 72-71 win over the Cadets. Foster hit 23 clutch markers to pace the Porker attack. Rhoden followed with 20 fiery tallies and Garner registered 15 points. Carpenter had another good rebound game with 14 grabs. Arkansas finished the two-game Texas stand against SMU in Dallas and the Mustangs repeated over the Hogs in another close contest. Halftime score was 28-28, but the more experienced Ponies prevailed, 56-51. Sophomores once again led Arkansas scorers. Garner was tops with 13, while Foster and Rhoden notched 12 each. Thompson had 14 rebounds.

LOOSE for a lay-in, Clyde Rhoden demonstrates the type of play which elevated him from an unknown sophomore to the number six position on the Conference All-Star team. The A&M Aggies were typical of most SWC teams who found it necessary to assign two men to try and stop Rhoden.

Overtime

HOOK SHOT by Jay Carpenter (25) is good for two more points against Tulsa. Rhoden (24) rounds the key hole in a play pattern and heads for rebounding position.

Arkansas closed before home fans with a 63-56 win over the Texas Longhorns. Seniors Harry Thompson and Jay Carpenter led the attack with strong supporting roles coming from the three sophs and Rankin. Thompson swished seven field goals for 14 points while Carpenter scored 13 tallies. Arkansas held a commanding 34-22 halftime lead. The Season ended as hard-to-handle Texas Tech took a home court advantage to task in winning, 80-69, worst defeat of the year. Half-time score was 41-35 and the Raiders extended their lead. Garner scored 24, Rhoden had 15, and Foster tallied 12.

cross country

ALL ALONE, Hog cross country runners hit two-mile point against Oklahoma State.

Arkansas added its third consecutive cross-country championship as the Porkers continued to build a reputation of strength in distance running. Student assistant Earl Bond assumed the duties of departed assistant coach James Brown and under the direction of "Ab" Bidwell, he whipped a strong letterman nucleus into an undefeated combination. Returning lettermen included Joe Bessenbacher, Jerry Carter, Ray Dyck, Tommy Oakley, Alan Rennick, James Taylor and Stuart Towns. Highly regarded sophomore Jack Nelson, holder of the freshman mile run record, joined those seven to give the Razorbacks both depth and strength. Nelson paced the Razorbacks in the Southwest Conference meet held in Fort Worth as the Porkers finished well ahead of second-place Southern Methodist and third-place Texas. Following Nelson in the conference meet were Oakley, Rennick, Dyck, Bessenbacher, and Taylor. Although no records were broken during the season, the squad had strong balance and participated in the NCAA meeting in East Lansing, Michigan. The Porker harriers placed a strong ninth, bettering a thirteenth place finish of the previous year. Coach Bond, only graduate off the 1957 squad, participated with five of the regular Hog runners. Oakley and Carter are the only squadmen to be lost by graduation. Oakley was the leading runner of the year.

Anticipated bad weather and a dangerously thin mound corps caused the 1959 baseball schedule to be cut from the normal 22 games to 14. Lefthander Lou Hobson and righthander John Kerr constituted the only returning letterman hurlers and along with H. C. Hall started a majority of the games played by the Razorbacks. Graduation also caused major changes in both the infield and outfield and the season was largely one of adjustment. The Porkers showed sparkle at times as the conversion of players to new positions caused inconsistent play. But the team rounded into good shape toward the end of the season with prospects bright for the following year. Hobson and shortstop C. B. Newton are the only players to leave by graduation and several highly regarded freshman pitchers will be available. Included on the schedule were games with Wichita, Buena Vista, Emporia State, Missouri, Tulsa, and Centenary. Arkansas made only two trips — a swing through Kansas and Missouri during the Easter Holidays and a two-game stand in Tulsa. "Duddy" Waller and Bill Ferrell shared coaching duties on the baseball team, marking the first year that the Porkers have had two staffed baseball supervisors.

The batting powerhouse was provided by a trio of Newton, Pat Foster, and Tom Glaze. Two-sport letterman Foster played first and hit cleanup while both Newton and Glaze switched to new positions. Newton moved from the outfield to short and Glaze shifted from catcher to right field. The rest of the lineup included Joe Nosari, catcher; Max Holloway, second base; John Abramczyk, third base; Sam Lum, left field; and Jarrell Williams, centerfield. Jim Mooty started out in left field but dropped from the squad for spring football practice. Arkansas opened at home against Wichita and fell 8-3 but bounced back for its first win against Buena Vista by 6-5. Emporia State fell victim in a road-trip double-header, 4-3 and 14-13. The winning streak was extended to four games against Wichita on the strength of a 4-3 win, but the win skein was halted by Wichita in the second game, 11-5. Strong Missouri was next and the national collegiate finalists had little trouble in 11-0 and 13-0 wins over Arkansas. The Hogs defeated Tulsa 5-2, but dropped the second game of a home double-header 3-1. Two games each with Tulsa and Centenary completed the 1959 playing schedule.

JOE NOSARAI, approaching first base, looks for extra bases in opening game. Good with bat, Joe steadied Porkers from catcher position.

FOLLOWING THROUGH, righthander John Kerr squares off against the batter. Kerr and Hobson were the only lettermen hurlers on the squad and bore the brunt of pitching.

INDOOR batting practice was made possible this year by the addition of a new pitching machine and new batting cage installed beneath the east football stands.

track

Track continued on the road to improvement under the fourth year of Coach Ab Bidwell and his new assistant, Earl Bond. A sweep of the meet with Pittsburg State Teachers and Coffeerville Junior College and the Mid-South Relays in Memphis set the Porkers on the road to a seemingly fine season. Although weak in the weight events, the Hog thinclads made up the difference in the distances and the sprints. At the Fayetteville meet, Terry Arenz won the 100 yard dash in 9.6 and Alvin Arnold took the 220 yard dash in 21.5. Mack Newton won the 440 yard dash in 49.1; Ray Dyck won the 880 yard run in 1:59.6; Tom Oakley won the mile run in 4:25.6; and Jack Nelson took the two-mile run in 10:18. In the field events, Alan Sugg won the pole vault with a leap of 13'0" and Arenz took honors in the javelin throw with a heave of 174'1". He also placed second in the broad jump. Two new Razorback records were established at the Texas Relays as the sprint medley team of Mack Newton, Wayne McCollum, Alvin Arnold, and Ray Dyck posted a time of 3:26.2. However, they did not take the Texas event. The mile relay team also set a new Razorback record at Texas even in defeat. A team composed of Terry Arenz, Ray Dyck, Wayne McCollum, and Mack Newton posted a 3:16 time. At the Kansas Relays, Terry Arenz, runner-up last year, again entered decathlon competition. Other Porkers who were forecasted to make good in the meet were Tom Oakley in the steeplechase and Alan Sugg in the pole vault. The top freshman track team to come along in many years forecasted a bright future for the U. of A. track program.

The tennis program at Arkansas is one that is building toward the future. With three returning lettermen, seniors David Abernathy and James Dyke, and junior Rudy Martin to bolster the squad, Coach John "Red" Davis has an attractive 10-match non-conference schedule drawn up for 1959. The team dropped its opening match 7-0 to Oklahoma, considered to be one of the strongest teams on the schedule. The team is expected to finish at a .500 pace at the completion of the season. Several promising transfers and freshmen should combine to step up the net program at Arkansas for 1960. The lone returnee who finished with a winning individual record for the year is Rudy Martin — currently ranked No. 8 among the state's amateurs. Other members of the tennis team are juniors Robert Fikes and Bob Franklin and sophs John Henry Moore and Randy Spencer. The Razorbacks have not participated in the SWC tennis program for several years, but have been sending representatives to the league's spring tournament in May. This same procedure will be followed this year. A return to loop play is definitely planned for the near future — possibly 1960.

JOHN HENRY MOORE throws up another practice serve as he and mates do each afternoon west of Holcombe.

SINKING a putt in match play with Tulsa at Fayetteville is Razorback number one, Louis Henderson.

Arkansas' first Southwest Conference champion golf team found its hands full trying to defend its title. Three opening match losses tarnished the Arkansas record, but Bob Zander's crew conceded nothing in the early stages. With 50 percent of the team departed, Arkansas faced a considerable rebuilding job. A pair of hard-hitting seniors who helped engineer that first links title paced the team. Returnees Louis Henderson and Jerry Breckenridge are tested Southwest Conference veterans who can be counted on for stability. Henderson's individual play in the league last year showed a record of $5\frac{1}{2}$ to $1\frac{1}{2}$ of seven points possible while Breckenridge won five out of seven. As for two men to fill the top four positions left vacant by number one man Ray Bob Barnes and number four man Bob Waldron, Zander expects spring competition to be the determining factor. Replacing Barnes will be difficult but Zander hopes to compensate for Waldron's loss by strength in numbers. Other members of the squad are Joe Crumpler Jr., Donn Kerby, and Beryl Anthony. One thing is certain — now that Arkansas has had its taste of golf success, and with fine young golfers moving into Razorback frosh ranks — the Porkers will be a contender in the future.

Undefeated and ballyhoed, the 1958 Arkansas Shoats are one of the most publicized freshman football teams in Arkansas athletic history. The yearlings startled Southern Methodist, 30-6, in their Texarkana opener to set the stage for a year of anticipated thrills. Names such as Lance Alworth, Bruce Fullerton, Sonny Holmes, Billy Moore, Mickey Cissell, Curtis Cox and Norman Reavis became common vernacular as five opponents fell victim. Arkansas scored 143 points while limiting the opposition to 19. Following SMU, the Shoats had trouble in gaining a 12-7 decision from Oklahoma State as gambles backfired against the stubborn Cowboy defense. The Arkansas B-Team battle in Fort Smith followed, and the contest resembled a spring training scrimmage as varsity aspirants strove to show their wares. The Shoats triumphed 13-6. Highly rated Texas Tech journeyed to Little Rock and returned to Lubbock after absorbing a 33-0 defeat. Two Arkansas units scored at will against the Picadors. In the last game of the season, a large crowd turned out to witness the only Fayetteville performance of the year — a 60-0 shellacking of the Tulsa frosh. First and second units scored practically every time they received the ball, and the third unit actually logged the most playing time. Long runs and pin-point passing against Tulsa left Razorback fans with visions of future improvement. Shoat linemen and backs are expected to give the already thin varsity ranks a strong boost.

PASS from quarterback Holmes has a double chance of being caught as end Langston (83), halfback Alworth (23) go up in SMU end zone.

BRUCE FULLERTON (22) bobbles a short flat pass from Billy Moore in the SMU battle at Texarkana. Shoats in the play include tackle Earl McPike (76), guard Bill May (66) and center Bob Hudspeth (51).

GANG tackling by SMU was the only way they could stop the Shoat backs and four of them jumped Ronnie Barris (40). Also in the play are Lance Alworth (23), Bill May (66) and Norm Reavis (34).

shoat basketball

"Nothing succeeds like success," and a prime example would be the Arkansas freshman basketball team under "Duddy" Waller. The 1958-59 Shoats completed the most successful season of the post-war years and the two-year record of Waller-coached frosh cage teams now stands at 21-3. The Baby Porkers dropped their first game to Joplin JC 68-63 but won the remaining 11 games on their schedule. Leading scorer of the year was guard Jerry Carlton and the Sheridan whiz eclipsed the frosh scoring record set the previous year by Clyde Rhoden. Carlton scored 242 points for a 20.3 average, compared to Rhoden's 235 point record. Carlton's high total was 26 against Fort Smith JC. Following Carlton was Alan Morrison with 188 points and a 15.7 average. After the opening contest, Arkansas won by scores of 49-44 against Connors A&M; 70-47 against Bacone JC; 56-43 against the Tulsa Frosh; 62-47 against Texarkana JC; 102-51 against Fort Smith JC; 80-48 against Joplin JC; 76-53 against Bacone JC; 59-48 against Connors A&M; 62-45 against the Tulsa Frosh; 69-55 against Texarkana JC; and 91-45 against Fort Smith JC.

FAMILIAR scene to basketball fans was the sight of Jerry Carlton shooting himself to a new frosh record.

CLEARING pole set at 13'4" for a new University vaulting record is frosh jumper Jerry Hughes.

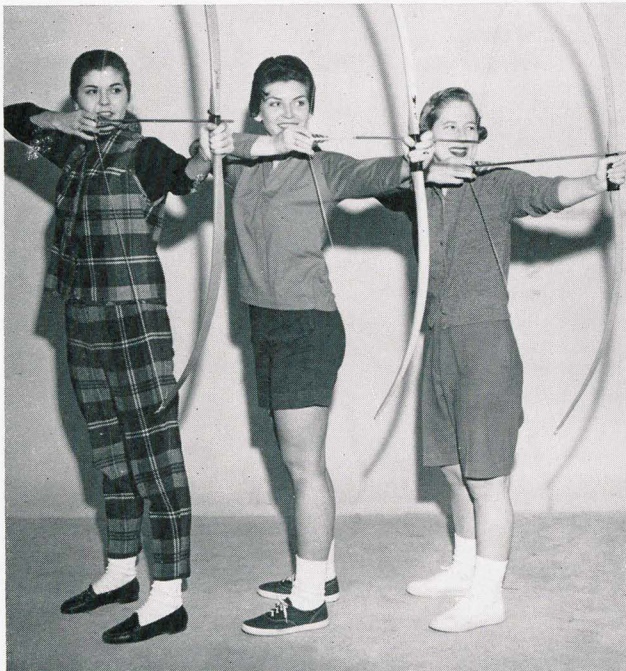

Big news for the Arkansas track picture and top performances came from the Shoat track team this year. Jerry Hughes set a new University vaulting record in the pole vault with a jump of 13'4" in the meet held in Fayetteville. At the meet, he beat all contestants in both the freshman and varsity divisions. Ralph Brodie set new marks in both the 120 high hurdles and the 220 lows. At the Texas Relays, Brodie broke his own University record of 14.9 with a time of 14.7. His record breaking time for the lows was 24.2. Larry Vest set a new high jump record with a leap of 6'¼". Lance Alworth, the speedy football player, tied two freshman sprint marks by recording times of 9.6 in the 100 yard dash and 21.4 in the 220 yard dash. The 440 relay team composed of Alworth, Bruce Fullerton, Jim Holley, and Brodie set a new frosh mark of 42.2. They made this record breaking run in competition at the Texas Relays.

The intramural program of the University is under the direction of the Health, Physical Education, and Recreation department. This department has a two-fold purpose at the University. One purpose is to train leaders and teachers in the field of physical education. This is accomplished through the physical education program offered by the College of Education. In addition, activities such as the PEM Club and acting as officials in the various intramural contests aid the department in their instruction. The second purpose of the department is to offer a full intramural program to the students of the University. The intramural program is divided into men's and women's and the men's is further divided into Greek and independent. Competition is provided in sports such as football, basketball, archery, tennis, bowling, softball, golf, horseshoes, badminton, ping pong and volleyball. Houses compete each year for the coveted sweepstakes trophy. Defending champions are Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Davis Hall, and Buchanan House. While the intramural program is the most encompassing single activity of the department, the program outlined by the department also provides extensive work in modern dance and a dance program is presented yearly in the Fine Arts Center, usually in conjunction with Orchesis. Facilities used by the intramural department include the Men's Gym, the Women's Gym, and the Leroy Pond intramural fields south of Terry Village.

The Student Senate, legislative branch of the Associated Students of the University, is composed of those who have actively campaigned for and been victorious in the annual spring elections. As Senators, they represent their respective classes and schools in an attempt to bring the ideals of democratic self-government to actual realization in the form of legislative enactments. The difficulties inherent in this policy making task became most evident this year when the Senate's decision concerning a class ring sale proposal by Blue Key was overruled by the University. The Student Court, functioning as the judicial body for the Associated Students, realizes the ideals of law and justice in its decisions concerning student disciplinary measures. Both of these bodies, through their tireless efforts and consistent valid decisions, have rightly earned the respect of those whom they represent, the student body of the University of Arkansas.

Student spirit is a valuable and intragal part of any educational institution and the University cheerleaders strive to keep the spirit at the highest possible level. When the Razorbacks are winning, the duties of the cheerleaders require only an abundance of energy and endurance. But when the score is running against the team, they must bring out the latent enthusiasm and confidence of the students. Through the coordinated and concentrated efforts of the cheerleaders and the Arkansas Booster Club, school spirit and sportsmanship has been at an all-time high this year. The University was announced as the co-winner of the Southwest Conference sportsmanship trophy during half-time ceremonies at the Cotton Bowl. This award was possible only because of the channeling of spirit and sportsmanship demonstrated by the cheerleaders. Long tiring trips, exhausting practices, sore throats, and inspiring performances characterized the University cheerleaders. These eight students are campus leaders of a very special type — leaders of our cheers, spirit, and enthusiasm for the fighting Razorbacks.

VIVACIOUS head cheerleader Carolyn Harris demonstrates some of the enthusiasm characteristic of the entire cheerleading squad.

Two slogans of the ROTC aptly describe its mission. They are: "Better prepared to better serve," and "Learn today — Lead tomorrow." No one ever wants to go to war, and it is the history of this nation that its wars have been forced upon it. However, no matter how great his aversion to war is, the wise and prudent man knows that war may come and prepares for it. This can be done in the Army ROTC. ROTC here at the University began back in 1917, and since that time the unit has compiled an enviable record in accomplishing its mission; which is, the turning out of basically trained second lieutenants of high potential value to the service for duty in the Organized Reserve Corps of the United States Army and in the regular army. At the University, all male students, except veterans, who are physically qualified, are required to take two years of military training in the ROTC. However, students electing to take the advanced course are carefully screened by a board of officers for character, intelligence, leadership, alertness, and aptitude before being accepted. Last year, the University became one of the selected five colleges and universities in the Fourth Army area to receive the army flight training program. By the end of this school year, twenty-one cadets will have received their half-wings. This program is open only to senior cadets who are able to meet the rigid physical requirements set down by the Department of the Army. Upon graduation, these selected cadets will first attend their selected branch school and from there will go to flight training school at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. The evidence of high esteem which Fourth Army headquarters holds in the Corps here at the University is proven by the fact that this year 17 cadets applied for a regular army commission and all of them were accepted.

"Tomorrow's Air Force leaders are today's students in the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps Program." The mission of the Department of Air Science and Tactics at the University of Arkansas is to provide an opportunity for the study of subjects of recognized military and educational value supplementing the regular program of study and assisting the student to lay the foundation of intelligent citizenship. In time of peace or war, the United States Air Force looks toward the universities and colleges for its future leaders. In the freshman year the cadets concentrate mostly on the fundamentals of close order drill and discipline. In the classroom they learn such things as Air Force aviation, geography in the air age, and organization of the Air Force. The sophomore year the cadets begin to assume responsibility by taking charge of a seven man squad. Their classroom studies consist of elements of aerial warfare concerning targets, weapons, various types of aircraft, and Air Force bases. Then there is a screening process to choose those who are to continue in advanced ROTC, eventually receiving commissions in the Air Force Reserve. Starting with their junior year, the cadets really concentrate on learning the role they will be expected to play as officers. Such courses, as public speaking, creative thinking, the officer and his staff, weather, and military law help them prepare for this role. The seniors polish off their training with courses on Air Force leadership and management, military aspects of geography, and briefing on the commission service. At summer camp, the cadets get the chance to fly with crews of Air Force planes and participate in practice maneuvers. This gives the cadets the chance to see various types of planes and weapons. It also gives them a preview of the type of equipment they will use after receiving their commissions.

army rotc rifle team

The team which has been the most consistent winner for the University and the team which has received the least praise is the Army ROTC rifle team. When this group of riflemen loose, it is a rare thing. Not only did they place second in Hearst Trophy competition which ranks them second nationally, but they also took the Mid-Western League title and defended their Governor's Cup for the state title. Starting the year off with a bang, the team journeyed to Fort Chaffee and soundly beat the best the Army had to offer by a score of 1910 to 1839. Mid-Western League competition opened and Arkansas scored first in match number one with a total of 1906. Match number two also went to the ROTC men with a 1909 score. Teams from Arkansas and Eastern Oklahoma met at Fort Chaffee for the 4th Army preliminary and Arkansas was winner of the meet by scoring 3716 points. OSU slipped up on the riflemen in match number three by taking it 1901 to 1894. Arkansas came back to take number four with 1908 and number five with 1910. OSU took number six 1906 to 1890, but the Army team came back with a win in number seven by shooting 1915. OSU also dropped the NRA sectional championship to Arkansas by a 1423 to 1400 score. Southwest Missouri also was humiliated by two lopsided victories, 1903 to 1838 and 1426 to 1376.

Pershing Rifles is a tri-service organization offering training in military leadership, customs and organization, and fostering a spirit of friendship among members of the two armed service ROTC's. Pershing Rifles is a national honorary military society. It was started by and bears the name of General of the Armies John J. Pershing, leader of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe during World War I. Pershing Rifles was started as a small drill unit by Pershing when he was an instructor of military science at the University of Nebraska in 1894. This drill team won many honors for proficiency, and is still the main point stressed by this organization. A person is eligible for membership in the organization upon his application and successful completion of hazing week. During this hazing week, or pledgeship, the candidates are required to wear their uniform and carry a wooden rifle. By the end of pledge week, the candidate must have every active member's name written on it. In addition to this, the pledges are required to know all information about the fraternity, and on the day prior to their initiation, must attend a drill period at 5:00 A.M.

ASSEMBLED for a group picture, members of the Pershing Rifles took time off from a rigid drill schedule to oblige a waiting yearbook photographer. The size of the organization has shown a great increase over the past years as the regiment's prestige continues to keep growing.

HAZING Scabbard and Blade pledge during their "hell week" are members Jimmy Reed, Gene Kleese and Fred Isgrig. The poor pledges were a familiar site serving as goats of members.

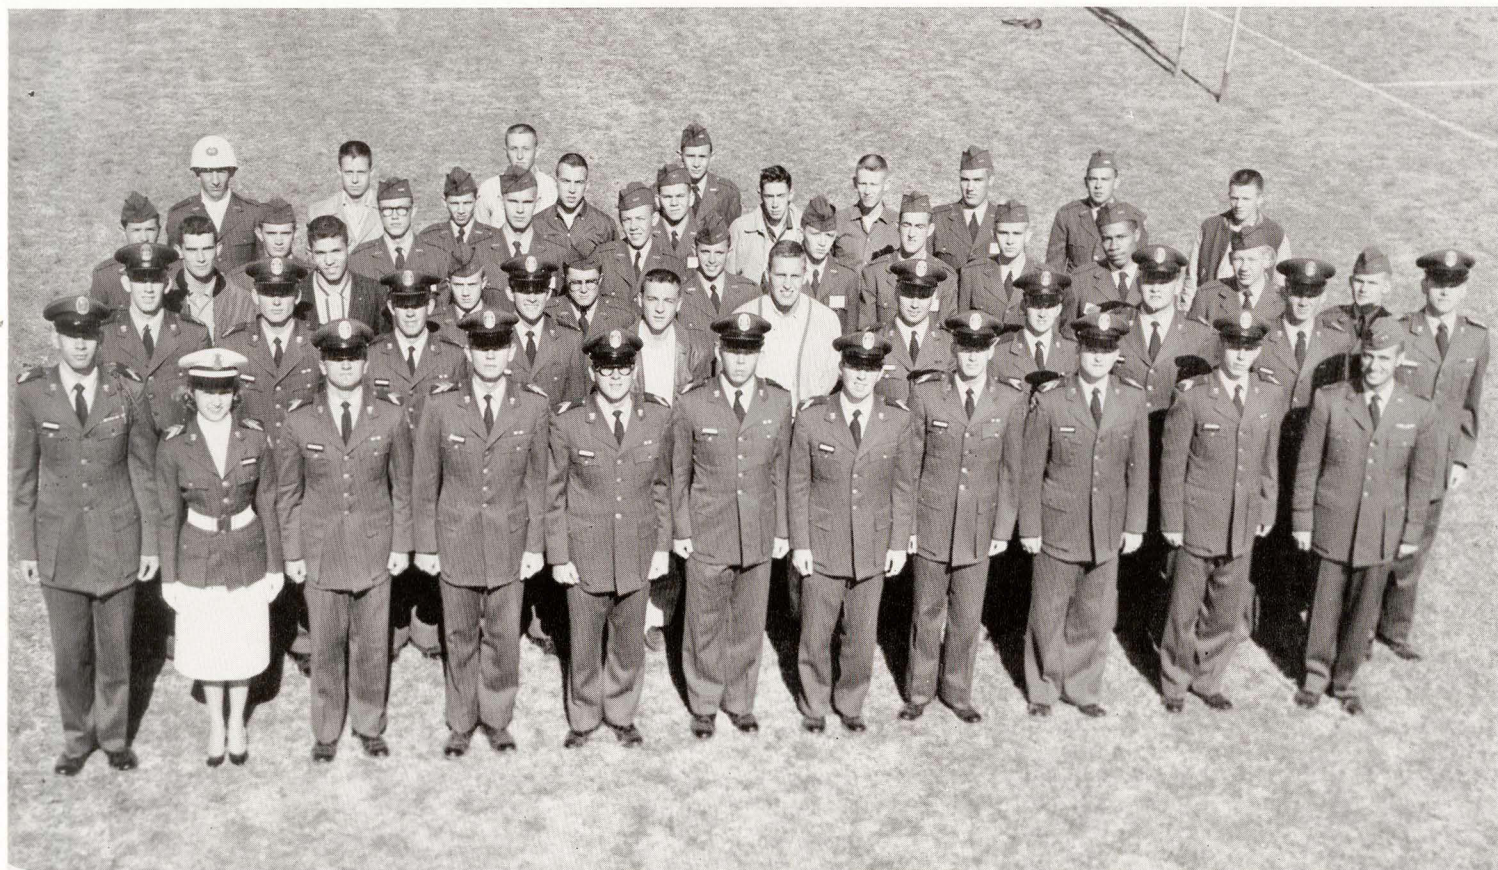

scabbard and blade

The National Society of Scabbard and Blade is an honorary organization for juniors and seniors who are cadets in the Army ROTC. Cadets are selected for membership on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and efficiency in ROTC work. The objectives of the organization, the ultimate military honorary represented here at the University, include: to raise the military standards in American colleges and universities, to unite a closer relationship between their military departments, to encourage and foster the essential qualities of efficient officers, and to promote friendship among cadet officers. The company here at the University of Arkansas, Company B of the Second Regiment, is one of the oldest societies of Scabbard and Blade, having been founded in 1916, one year before the ROTC program was started on the campus. One of their most widely known activities is the firing of the cannon to start pep rallies off with a bang. The cannon was also used during football games when the Razorbacks scored a touchdown. Some of the other events include the forming of the saber arch at the Army Military Ball for the Honorary Cadet Officers to pass through before their formal presentation to the Cadet Corps.

arnold air society

The Arnold Air Society is a national honorary organization benefiting those in the advanced AFROTC program having a 3.00 grade average in air science and a 2.0 overall academic grade point average. Also, those cadets electing to join this honor unit must have demonstrated excellent leadership characteristics and have a high degree of interest in aviation. The Arnold Air Society strives to improve student-faculty relations and inter-school ROTC relations. Perhaps the most important objective is a broad program of public relations whereby the layman may better know and understand the Air Force and as a result, raise the standards of the Air Force. Their numerous activities include a banquet in honor of the Honorary Cadet Colonel and the Honorary Cadet Lt. Colonels, after which several of the society members have their annual debate on air power. New members are not pledged until spring and their duties consist of obtaining each members signature on a cardboard F-102 which must be worn around their neck during their week of pledgeship. During this time, the candidates are required to wear their uniform and are given a complete test on the founding and principles of Arnold Air Society. One of the latter big events of the year is the Air Force Ball. The Arnold Air Society assumes responsibility for and supervision of this Air Force event.

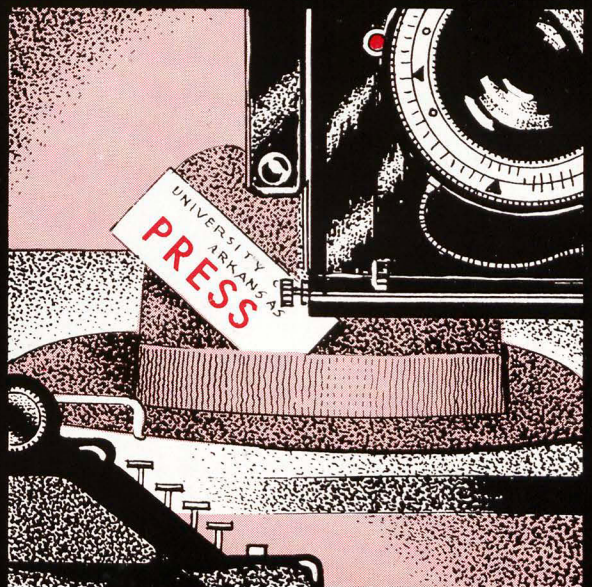

DRILL FIELD discussion on tentative plans for the next Arnold Air meeting is being held by its group leaders Bob Eichberger, Norman Mason and Capt. Dwight McDowell.

six cents, a hi-fi, and a slow clock

Someone always needed six cents for a coke. The Kingston Trio keep the hi-fi busy. The clock in Old Main's tower chimed slowly away. This is how the year in the Razorback office got its start. This austere beginning had a rude awakening when two photographers from New York set up in the Student Union to photograph the list which almost wasn't compiled during registration because Mr. Keller wanted to kick our lone table from within his gym. After many coffee breaks, heart attacks, illness, fights, early leaves and exposed film, the job of coaxing the greatest number of stud-

Then, any group who could find a reason to be called an organization stood on the music department's beloved bleachers to have their picture made for the organization section. Homecoming meant the first big picture order and then it was Christmas time — a time to send in all the Greek and class panels, an undersirable job. Proofs started coming back after the first of the year and the work really began. It resulted in a two way battle and rush between printer and engraver. If a deadline wasn't coming up for one, it was for the other. The attendants at the bus station got so use to seeing a Razorback staff member coming in with proof for (Continued on Page 354)

the 10:30 bus that they could write the ticket by heart. Things progressed smoothly for the staff until late spring when the realization that time was running out took hold. An Easter in Fayetteville helped out immensely, but it still required later and many more hours for staff writers and photographers. Finally, David Shaw's Gaebale push finished it. And so, the 1959 Razorback has been written.

five days a week and “apathy”

What did the Traveler accomplish, and what did its staff members do during the 1958-59 school year? First, the Traveler got the news out five days each week, Monday through Friday. Second, the staff members worked like hell. Led by its chief gripe-getter, Scotty Scholl, the Arkansas Traveler attempted to maintain its place on a campus already overcrowded with people eager to prove their abilities as molders of public opinion. The staff worked from 12 midnight to 12 midnight each day, a schedule which could have been many hours shorter were it not for calls from enraged Holcombe Hall counselors whose wards were “actually offended” by panty raids, or calls notifying the Traveler it had misspelled the phrase “student apathy.” (Continued on Page 357)

WATCHING the day's issue of the Traveler roll off the flat-bed press in the University printing plant are editor-elect Ed Dozier, press operator Jim Murphy, and editor Scotty Scholl. Editors arrived each morning at 7:30 to "button" the issue, then started planning again for the next one.

Of course, The Traveler misspelled many words during its first year of publishing five days a week. But many words were spelled correctly among the total of about 1,360,000 which appeared on its pages. And they described events which happened every day on the UofA campus, in Little Rock and the chambers of the 1959 Legislature, and all over. The staff of the 1958-

59 Traveler was the largest and best organized of its history. Its efficiency was sparked by Ed Dozier, Associate Editor; Jim Johnson, Managing Editor; the freshman-with-guts Armil Snow, News Editor; Sports Editor Jim Standard; Society Editor Betty Houchin, and the many other greats who substituted and did the work for the editors. NIGHT WATCH is in progress as Ed and Scotty ponder and discuss a problem. Many cigarettes vanish in smoke nightly as Traveler editorial heads pit foot work and typewriter work against daily deadlines.

The Traveler rallied to the support of the University as its usual hazardous encounter with the Legislature came around. It poked fun at a few and offered suggestions to higher education and to Governor Faubus. Its editors visited other Southwest Conference schools and compared them with the UofA. And the staff had its fun . . . such as the time suit was threatened for "breach of trust" in an interview. But, there were the end-of-publication parties for forgetting about the trials of newspapering. And, there was companionship and that stuff.

ACTING like a scan-a-graver expert, writer Marty Judge awes fellow writer Julia Mae Rumph. Later, Julia learned the truth.

BETTY HOUCHIN compiled society news each week from tiny bits of paper turned in. Minnier covered campus.

INSANITY takes a high toll in Hill Hall and the biggest sufferer was Traveler photographer Parker David Rushing who could often be heard ranting and raving in the darkroom.

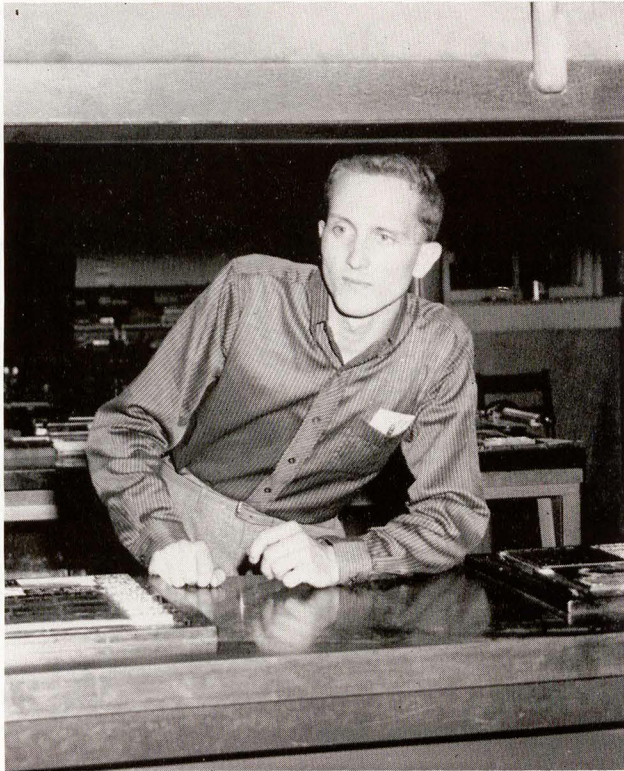

SLY GRIN of the business staff indicates that sneaky Razorback photographer caught them doing something they shouldn't have been doing.

DROPPING IN to see if any important announcement has appeared on the staff bulletin board for her, sometime staff member and sometime visitor Mimi Kerr stopped Jenny Mitchell to ask her where the bulletin board was.

PLANNING business strategy for each issue of the Agriculturist fell on the shoulders of Clark Crum and his staff, Wilson and Dunn.

agriculturist

Featuring activities in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, the Arkansas Agriculturist included subjects ranging from the most intense research studies to student projects. Two issues of the magazine were written and edited by students each semester under direction of Chief Editor Bill Barksdale and Associate Editor Virginia Price. Business Manager Clark Crum was in charge of advertising and circulation. Functioning as the official organ of the Agri Students Association, the Agriculturist published the traditional Agri Day edition April 25, featuring Queen Carolyn Files. Another highlight was the special February issue dedicated to the Home Economics department and its many activities. For agri and home ec students who have traces of printer's ink mingled in their blood, the Agriculturist provided opportunities for good journalistic training. An average of 2,000 copies of each issue were printed and distributed to Arkansas high schools, county agents and other agri colleges throughout the United States. Even the art and photography work was done by students in agri and home economics. The number of actual staff positions was whittled to a minimum this year in order to have only the required departmental editors. This ultimately resulted in more students writing articles and contributing in the office work of magazine production. Special departments included features, home ec and agri news, art and photography. The success of the new staff theory was proven when students not directly associated with the magazine suggested some of the most interesting Agriculturist feature stories. Built on this framework, the Arkansas Agriculturist devoted a year's publishing activities to telling students, the State of Arkansas, and the nation about the opportunities in agriculture and home economics.

Their plans were later submitted to editor Bill Barksdale for his approval.

It should be pointed out that the representations on this page of the persons involved in the publication of the Arkansas Engineer are, to use journalistic jargon, slanted. The word "slanted" means that the persons are shown in an incorrect light in respect to their true character and the character shown in the pictures. For example, at the top of the page is Jim Hefley, the co-editor of the magazine. Jim seems to be about the most wonderful combination of journalist, scientist, and politician that has ever graced our campus. His journalistic nature is shown by the magazine he holds, his scientific nature by the formula on the board, and his ever-present ridiculous grin signifies his political achievements. Anyone who really knows this Hefley fellow also knows that he is neither a journalist, scientist, or politician. He is a clod. Similarly, Dick Blake, the so-called Business Manager, seems to be saying in his picture, "Look at me, I am a good guy and I get rewarded by getting honors and I'm so modest." This is also not true. It is general knowledge that Blake has just "backed into" any honors that may have been conferred on him, like when he was named the Outstanding Graduate of the College of Engineering. The picture of John Moore, the other co-editor, is the closest to being a representation of the real he, the real he being unshaven, sleepy-eyed, lazy, and crepy. He said that he was growing a beard for Engineers Day and that he didn't know the picture was being taken, but then, he always seems to have some explanation for his mistakes — many explanations and many mistakes. The three staff members at the top of the second page are the three that have done the work all year and have supported the three imbeciles on the other page. The bald-headed guy in the picture at the bottom of the right-hand page is the one who censored the work of the three incompetants and the three workers. The magazine, in its entirety, was written, laid out, and printed by Prof. A. W. Blake of the University Printing Plant. — an editor's view.

Twenty one years of successful publication make history for the Guild Ticker, the official magazine of the College of Business Administration. The Ticker is published once each year to serve as a source of information about Business School Organizations, and a pleasant reminder of your year at the University of Arkansas. The Guild Ticker is published not only for the students of the College of Business Administration, but it also serves as the college's ambassador of good will to businesses and high schools throughout the state. Buddy McWilliams published his edition of the Guild Ticker with the help of his staff of B. A. students. This year's edition featured informal pictures of all graduating Business Administration seniors, the new faculty members, the Commerce Queen, the queen candidates, and a variety of other photographs and feature articles. The Ticker has been issued each year as business students celebrate Commerce Day. Selected for the feature article this year was the success story of recent University graduate Lee Bodenhamer and his rise to a very high position in the field of management. One of the other top features of the Ticker was the interpretive cover drawn by artist Bob Phelps. His theme was centered around a business ticker with a dime and graph also depicted.

The Preview is the publication of the College of Arts and Sciences, published each year in the spring. The publication of the magazine is largely a two-man (or women) job with one doing the selection of material to be printed and the other handling the art work and mechanics. The two men or women doing the job this year (although it's pretty definite who is which) are Bette Cooper and Bob Phelps. Bette done the selection and Bob done the art work. Bette's work involved selecting what the English professors told her was good and rejecting what the English professors told her was bad, while all the while these professors were making her believe that she was doing the selecting. Bob's job involved running interference between Mr. Whitlatch of Sculpture, Mr. McPheeters of Architecture, Mr. Durst of Painting, Mr. Rorex of Woodcutting, and Mr. Reif of Commercial Art (he is also chief kibitzer and gritcher). The reason for this running of interference on Bob's part was that, of course, each department was the most important, depending on whom Bob was talking to. Bob handled his job in a very tactful manner, or, to be more explicit, he was two-faced, three-faced, or four-faced as the occasion demanded. Phelps seems to think that mention should be made of Jim Kraft in spite of the fact that at the first of the year Jim didn't have a staff position. Phelps seems to think that the fact that Kraft did more work than any of the staff members justifies the mention of his name. However, it is not the policy of the Razorback to mention any person not mentioned as being a staff member. We regret that the name of Jim Kraft will not appear in this year's Razorback. The remainder of the staff can be divided into two groups, the working and the ornamental. The former group is composed of Dean Stoddard, Gail Ramsey, Max Sutton, and Mary Robertson. The latter group consists of Nikki Polychron, a Razorback beauty of 1958, and the Drake Relays Queen of the UofA. Nikki's purpose on the staff and on this page is purely ornamental. — an outsider's view.

BETTE COOPER
Editor

MIXED EMOTIONS prevail at the conference as the associate editor, business manager, and editor take their first look at the finished product. The editor is understandably proud and happy. The associate editor forces a smile, pondering the job which lies ahead and the business manager is glum thinking of the cost.

law review

The Arkansas Law Review and Bar Association Journal is mailed to every member of the Arkansas Bar Association, every state and territory of the Union, and copies reach as far as Belgium and Australia. It has been termed the most outstanding scholarly publication in any field in Arkansas. The quarterly is published by the School of Law and the Arkansas Bar Association, acting through a non-profit, benevolent corporation, which was formed for this purpose in 1947. What loosely could be classified as a predecessor of the Law Review is the old University of Arkansas Law School Bulletin, an irregularly published pamphlet that first appeared in 1929 and served the bar until 1946. The Law School Bulletin, however, consisted primarily of faculty work. The Law Review is, for the most part, a student endeavor. The student work is complimented with articles by leading jurists, consisted primarily of faculty work. The Law Review has been cited as authority in decisions by the Arkansas Supreme Court, federal courts and courts of other states. Text from its gray pages has been cited and reprinted in casebooks, textbooks, legal treaties and legal journals covering such fields as taxation, trusts, and banking. Material for the quarterly is compiled and edited by the student editorial board, which contributes almost all of the student work that is published. Members of the editorial staff receive credit hours toward graduation for work on the Law Review. Each published student article is accorded a fractional credit hour. A student seeking membership on the editorial staff must meet certain grade-point requirements and submit one or more articles of acceptable quality. Student work is confined principally to case notes and comments. A case note is a short treatment of a recent decision that has particular significance to Arkansas law. Comments are articles of broader scope and deal with recent trends in areas of Arkansas law.

What once was a troubled publication ran very smoothly this year simply because two editors kept their word. In the spring of 1958, Jim Manville and Glendon Self told the Student Senate that they would personally guarantee delivery of the directories on October 15th — the earliest date in history. The Senate took them at their word and gave them the job. On the night of October 14th, the two men walked into Scotty Scholl's office with their directories for a picture to announce the arrival. The Directory is, of course, a publication of the names, addresses, hometowns, and phone numbers of all students and faculty at the University. Bob Dawson started to work on the "A" Book in the spring of '58 and his edition of the publication was distributed in the Student Union shortly after school opened. The "A" Book is the handbook of information for University students, containing constitutions, rules and other pertinent information.

SCOTTY SCHOLL
Chairman of the Board

It is the duty of the University Board of Publications to set and regulate journalism policies of the University. Permanent members of the Board include the editor of the Traveler, the editor of the Razorback, the chairman of the Journalism Department, a faculty representative, and a business representative. Filling out the Board for this year were the editor of the Law Review, the editor of the Guild Ticker, the editor of the Engineer, and the editor of the Agriculturist. The editor of the Traveler is chairman and votes only in case of a deadlock. At the February meeting, Ed Dozier, associate editor of the Traveler, was elevated to Traveler editor for '59-'60. Bob Dawson, associate editor of the Razorback, was stepped up to Razorback editor of 1960. Mike Thompson, advertising editor of the Traveler, was picked as Traveler business manager for second semester as well as for next year. Jim Tuohey, editor of the Razorback, was given the financial duties of the Razorback for 1960. The Board also selected John Moore, editor of the Engineer, as "A" Book editor.

The outstanding performance of the Collegiate Singers for the year was their joint Christmas concert with the University-Fayetteville Symphony Orchestra when the combined groups presented Handel's "Messiah". In addition, the group also presented a very successful spring concert. The Collegiate Singers is composed entirely of University students and numbered 45 this year. Auditions were held at the start of each semester and those whose voices are most suited for blending were chosen. Practice is held three times a week at one o'clock on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Participants in the Collegiate Singers program receive an hour's credit for their work and attendance is naturally required. The group is very capably directed by Mr. Richard Brothers of the Music Department. The only dim spot of the year was that arrangements could not be made so that the group could take their annual singing tour of the state.

LEADING Collegiate Singers is their director, Mr. Richard Brothers. The group rehearses each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at one.

schola cantorum

The honor group of singers at the University is the Schola Cantorum which was organized on campus just last year. Included on the program schedule for the group was a Christmas concert, a spring concert, and trips to Joplin, Missouri and to Morrilton for concerts. Like the Collegiate Singers, this group is also very capably directed by Mr. Richard Brothers. In his absence, many of the practice sessions are conducted by Larry Rosenbaum, a graduate assistant in music. Practice sessions are held every day of the week except Saturday and Sunday and members of the group receive an hour's academic credit for their work. The group was originally established with twenty-three outstanding members and that number has remained intact this year even though there has been a personnel change. The Schola Cantorum presented a special musical program at graduation this fall which took the place of the customary commencement speaker. Although it is young, the group has established itself on campus and its concerts are most popular.

LARRY ROSENBAUM subs for absent Mr. Brothers, but still keeps up the rigorous practice pace.

DRIVING symphony orchestra through night practice session, Dr. Pales rehearses for presentation of Handel's "Messiah".

university-fayetteville symphony

Presenting five programs on campus in the Fine Art's Concert Hall, the University-Fayetteville Symphony Orchestra truly adds to the culture of the University. Highlight of the year was the joint presentation before a packed house of nine hundred people of Handel's "Messiah". Each year, the orchestra joins with the Collegiate Singers to present an opera at Christmas. Other activities for the group included concerts in Harrison, Eureka Springs, Springdale, Fort Smith and Muskogee, Oklahoma. In addition, distinguished members of the orchestra presented special programs. Cello soloist, Mr. Fritz Magg, gave "The Dvorak Cello Concert" and piano soloist, Mr. Max Carr, performed the "3rd Piano Concerto" by Beethoven. The sixty instrument orchestra consists of musicians from Fayetteville townspeople, University faculty and students, and Fayetteville high school students. Direction is by Dr. Marx Pales of the University Music Department. The orchestra is supported by scholarship aid from the Fayetteville Society.

CORRECTIVE glance of conductor lets violinists know that he is not satisfied. Musical knowledge and talent of Dr. Marx Pales helps him exact the desired perfection.

INVASION of the Marion Hotel in Little Rock takes place in the afternoon before the Arkansas-Ole Miss game. Leading the invasion is a sound barrier supplied by the drummers.

During the year, the Marching Razorbacks, in addition to their many miscellaneous shows, performed at all Fayetteville football games, three Little Rock games, and one out-of-state game. The band, usually numbering around 100, was led by Drum Majors George Jernigan and Clyde Pope and Head Majorette Marlene Hillin and was directed by Dr. Richard Worthington. The three Little Rock trips were for the Baylor game, the Ole Miss game (with a stop-off in Morrilton for a high school game), and the Hardin-Simmons game (with a stop-off for another game in Russellville). In October, the band took a week end trip to Fort Worth to perform at the Arkansas-TCU game. Other band activities included marching at the Arkansas Live-stock Show and in the Homecoming parade in Fayetteville.

WHOOPIING Razorback bandsmen arrive at the Worth Hotel in Fort Worth for the renewal of rivalries with TCU. High-spirited band members, isolated in hostile Texas territory, bravely called the Hogs and extolled the virtues of Arkansas at every opportunity.

MOTIONLESS Dr. Richard Worthington plots halftime strategy with Drum Major George Jernigan while the band marches in place. With the football-type Razorbacks ahead at halftime, the marching-type Razorbacks proceeded from in place to precision marching wowing Arkansans at War Memorial Stadium.

INTENT on the bandmen performing on the field in front of him, Dr. Worthington prepares to give the band the downbeat. From his position on elevated stand on 50 yard line, conductor is able to see entire band spread from one end of field to the other.

IGNORED drum majors George Jernigan and Clyde Pope march to the end of the Greek Theatre stage while all eyes fastened on strutting majorettes led by Marlene Hillin. Girls in band seemed to have no trouble keeping up to the 220 steps-per-minute drum cadence, one of the fastest among the national collegiate bands.

SLEEPY band members stow away their baggage for long out-of-town trip to TCU. In order to get to Fort Worth in time to practice and eat before the game, it was necessary for band members to leave at 10 p.m. and drive all night.

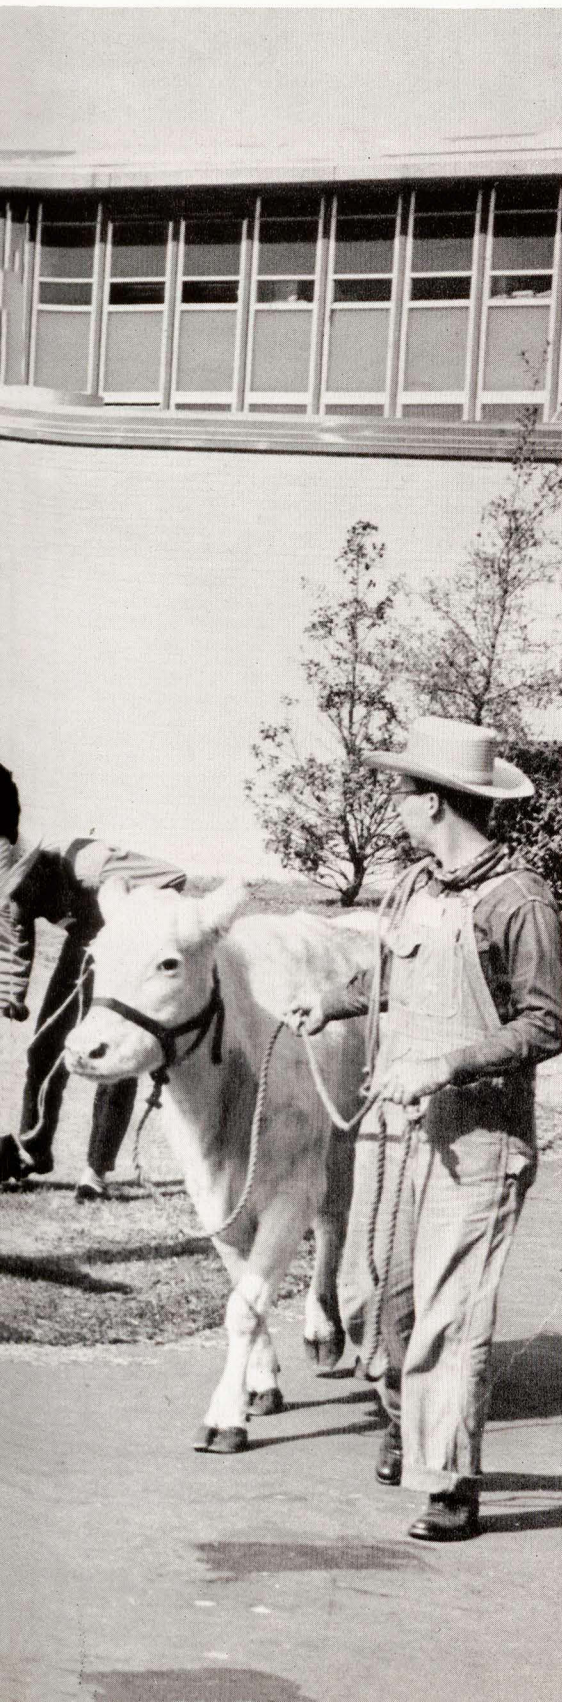

LEAVING the field with the familiar strains of "Dixie", the Marching Razorbacks complete their halftime show and head for their seats in the stands. Crowds were amazed throughout the year by the fact that the seemingly hopeless jumble of musicians always managed to make the right figure at the right time.

Mechanical engineering has to do with, as its name implies, the mechanics of engineering. Included under mechanics of engineering are such things as the design and maintenance of machinery and the integration of machinery into production lines. In addition to these main functions, mechanical engineering is almost limitless in the scope and variety of its works. Activities designed to broaden the members knowledge include meetings, smokers, field trips, and two regional conferences each year.

Psi Chi requires a high scholastic average for membership, including 12 hours in psychology with a grade point average of 2.5 and an average of 2.0 in all other subjects. Early in the year plans are made for a series of lectures on various phases of psychology. Meetings which include speakers are open to any interested students. Student participation in psychological experimentation, which is always under way in the department, is encouraged by Psi Chi. Participation in these experiments consists of the members actually taking tests given by someone in the department or a graduate student, or, in some cases, giving the tests themselves.

“nobody knows de trubble i seen”

It all started one hot summer evening in the Lounge of the Tulsa Club. Mr. R. C. Walker, Miss Gene McRae, Stokely Hays, and I were sitting and sipping and the conversation ranged widely. Then, someone said, “What are your plans for the ’59 Razorback?” I haven’t been the same for a year. I would credit most of my allusions at the Tulsa Club or maybe at Pierre’s or was it the Southern Hills Country Club, well anyway, the allusions which I was having that night were reproduced on paper in the form of sketches the next day. While I slaved away in two boring summer school courses, Gene and Auxier made up the dummy for the ’59 Razorback. In Fayetteville, the Traveler editor and I were going to school in the morning, sleeping in the afternoon, and talking in the local pubs at night. A brief trip to Tulsa in late summer for dummy approval and the stage was set. Before I get into my story, I would like to say to all of you at Southwestern that I am grateful for your help and aid. It truly is you who put out such fine yearbooks for the University. It is amazing how you can not only take the ideas and thoughts of an editor and mold them into a workable yearbook, but also take a young college man and give him the inspiration to carry on through the year even though you and he both know that he does not have the ability to be an editor. Trips to Tulsa will always be cherished by editors because you undoubtedly show us the time of our lives. In addition, you introduce us to a group of the finest people I have ever known. Mr. Hurley, you and your staff work miracles for the Razorback. I don’t know how you make our deadlines, and I don’t really think you do either. But, just as sure as the sun rises, someone is calling each week to spur us here in Fayetteville. Brock, you certainly have cared for us this year, especially me and my Greek headlines and my class section type size. All of this is a part of your job, but it becomes more than a job to take care of wayward editors in Fayetteville. To say the least, our Summit Meeting in Fayetteville is something that I will not soon forget. It was quite a strain on us all for each of us had our own idea about how this book was finally going to be done. About all I can say about the result of the meeting is that I know that it wasn’t going to be done my way. I was more or less a pawn in the printer vs. engraver chess game. Well, it is time to get back here to Fayetteville. School finally started and so did my troubles. The big problem in a job such as this one is searching through a long list of applicants to find a capable staff. Very fortunately, I found one. This staff had no great journalistic giants among its ranks, just hard working people. Take Edwene Stevens for instance. There never has been a class editor who has done the job so efficiently and in so short a time. Edwene, I can only compliment you on the way you handled your office. You faithfully marched your pledges over and I can safely say that the classes were the only sections I never worried about being finished. But, tell me, if you will, how you finished two classes that night when Poe and I could do only one? Eric, I remember what bad shape I found the office in after you had stayed up all night working. Ann, you and Connie not only marched over faithfully, but you added that extra something to this dull place. Scotty, you and Ed didn’t work with us on this book, but it was through your cooperation and help that we always got the needed space in the Traveler to make our appeals to the students so that production schedules could be met. Even if I sued you for $75,000 in moot court, Scotty, we could never forget the night we dreamed up the publications division opener. Ed, we directed a lot of jokes your way and a lot of Van’s bill collectors too, but you took each in your good natured way. P.S., I really do think your car is cute, though. Fussell, I have never enjoyed watching a writer sweat and strain over a section like you and Marilane did. Your sweat paid off because you did a top job. Rice, your copy was never on time, but the copy you turned in really showed journalistic knowledge and ability. Poor pledge Pollard, he really slaved at that typewriter for you. The Greeks were capably done, Marial and John. And, you should be proud that your copy was good enough that I didn’t think that it would need a rewrite to avoid having the more petty groups call the Razorback and complain about how they only had 124 pictures and another group had 125 pictures. McLemore, I skeptically put you on the staff, but you made up in willingness what you lacked in experience, even coming up to type the frosh forms the night you were to leave for Easter vacations. You are truly a good Razorback staffer. Etta Sue, I pitied your sister for typing most of the index, but as I told you, all I wanted was for it to be done. Lynn, the PIO staff enjoyed your drill visits to keep us exchanging news with other publications. Charlie, I’ve never seen anyone enter a field so enthusiastically when they didn’t know a damn thing about it. I guess that journalism will always be a mystery to you, but without your help a good portion of this book wouldn’t have been completed. Polly’s picture on your desk was a new innovation and it sure did help me when I got angry and would stomp around the office, about to utter certain phrases. And, I'll never forget our 8:30 in Dr. Kennedy's boring Money and Banking course. Don, we had our policy differences, but once you got your feet on the ground, you never let me down. I'm sorry that our class section and Greek section workers always cluttered up your desk, and let us not forget some of those bills, if you know what I mean. Tompkins, with all your campus activities, a wife, and a baby, I don't know how you got the ad section done. But, with the help of one of your pledges and the Woodruff twins, you got it done. You didn't record any record sales-figures, just ads to meet the budget. And, after the budget is met, who really cares? Byrd, you and Ronnie slaved away at the organization section for four weeks. The job you did was tops. I just wished that you had told me that you had promised to return the music department's bleachers two weeks earlier

so I wouldn't have told the lady to go to . . . when she called and accused me of being a thief. Van, wherever you are or wherever you may be, thanks a lot for your photographic contributions. I could write about you all day. I do want to tell you that President Caldwell and Coach Broyles almost went crazy this semester without you around to call in for a confidential talk. The rumors you started about the Razorback beauties actually turned out to be pretty funny in the long run. And, I know that you thought that we could never finish it without you, but by some miracle we did. Oh yeah, how do you like Jeter's bush on the fifth page? Jeter, Stokely and Don Millsap told me that someone would come along to take over my photography worries, and you did. I know that your grades slipped and you tired after your all night sessions, but you did a great job for which I will ever be indebted. Perhaps the highlight of the year was our night in Hill Hall when I came in from a visit with an old fraternity alum and joined you in one of your nightly printing rituals. The coffee was lousy, but that trip to the R&S with the frosted windows livened us up a bit. To you, I say thanks for saving the Razorback. Sgt. Billpoe, you too came to us with no journalistic experience, but took over every rough and dirty job that was passed up. Without staff members such as you, the yearbook would have never been done. You also took a lot of good natured ribbing, especially about your fear of birds and your "Quackenbush" haircut. Also, your note to me when you finished the index numbers was so funny that I have reprinted it for posterity so that you won't ever forget. "There are some 3,500 lost souls contained herein and at this point, which is incidentally 1:00 in the morning, all I can say is that the . . . are finished. There must be a better way, if there isn't, there ain't no justice." Bob, you served in a most unusual way for a "number 2" man. Actually, you did little work on the Razorback, but you served as a counsel and as a friend. Problems arose daily that really got me down, but it was you who goated me on to finish this job that I had started. Our experiences are too numerous and too many to name, but they will forever linger in our minds as part of his Hill Hall bond which we share. I know that you will make an excellent editor next year and feel confident that this book will only serve to help you put out a better one. John, in you I found the writer I had hoped to find somewhere. Your words are printed on almost every page for you have done so much. We had our little Drake Relay committee, our differences about the music we wanted on the hi-fi and our ever present worldly discussions in which we solved almost all of the world's problems. It was you who worked so hard during Easter and put us ahead of production schedule. Your copy has added that zest which has spiced up a once drab feature section.

No one will ever know the pleasure we got out of the simple phrase, "crazy Americans send only one plane." Keep at it like you do, and after you have reached the top, don't forget your close friend whom you stole blind and irritated to death for your publication down the hall. I wish that I could tell you how I truly feel, but it would get "goeey". For me, it has been a wonderful year. The reason that I say it is wonderful is because I have learned a valuable lesson which I can carry with me all the days of my life. I have found in this venture a cross-section of people who make up this world. And, I have learned that each of these people are different and that each must be treated in a special way. True, there were trying times with class photographers, with faculty advisors, with photographers, with rumors, with deadlines, with production schedules, with studying, with uncooperative professors, and without getting enough sleep, but it was worth it. No one can ever know what an enriching feeling it is to work with people like R. C. Walker, Gene McRae, Auxier, Wallace Hurley and Brock unless they have the pleasure of doing it themselves. Nor can anyone know what a feeling it is to publish for posterity your interpretation of a year in the life of 5,000 people. I am indebted to a lot of people for a lot of work and a lot of friendship, but I am more deeply indebted to each and every student of the University of Arkansas for giving me this opportunity to serve them.—Tuohey.
